Beef Market Still Strong After Boom Week

DAVE LEFEVER

NEW HOLLAND (Lancaster Co.) — It looks like the live beef market has gone as high as it will go.

Finished cattle prices this week slipped back from the record-breaking levels posted at local auctions and across the country during the week that ended Oct. 17.

Closing the border to Canadian cattle since a case of BSE was reported in Alberta this past May is widely viewed as a major cause of the beef market boom in the U.S.

Monday, slaughter steers at Vintage Livestock Auction, Paradise, sold $10 to $15 lower per hundredweight (CWT) compared to the previous Thursday, according to USDA-Pennsylvania's market news report Oct. 20.

The previous week had seen top-quality steers going as high as $132.50 per CWT at Vintage. This past Monday, high choice and prime steers sold mostly $106-$109 per CWT, with three going for $112-$116.

In more than 30 years in the beef business, Brown said he had never seen slaughter cattle sell above $100 per CWT, much less

Canadian Cattleman: Border Closing Is 'Huge Blow'

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Beef cattle prices have been breaking records in the U.S., but rancher Grant Hirsche of Alberta, Canada, has a different story to tell.

Hirsche manages a cow/calf operation near Calgary, running about 1,000 head of purebred Angus and Hereford cows. He is also president of the Alberta Hereford Association.

Hirsche spoke with Lancaster Farming Oct. 6 at the Keystone International Livestock Exhibition in Harrisburg.

Va. Farmers Air Concerns At Bridgewater College

GAY BROWNLEE
Virginia Correspondent

BRIDGEWATER, Va. — Shenandoah Valley farmers who weren't committed to field work on the beautiful mid-October Monday of the 2003 Agriculture Conference took advantage of a rare opportunity to personally meet with several persons from Washington. The officials bear the challenging responsibility of representing the interests of the multifaceted U.S. agriculture industry.

The conference was conducted at the Bridgewater College. Farmers and processors alike were granted an opportunity to ask questions and to voice concerns about their livelihoods.

First, however, they listened to the speakers expounding on the status of farm legislation, U.S. trade policies, food safety in todays greatly altered world, and the ever-present threat of bioterrorism.

Raw Milk Takes Spotlight At Info Meeting

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Why are people allowed to buy life-endangering cigarettes when their freedom to purchase raw milk products is so limited?

Taylor Diaz, 15, asked that question at a raw milk informational meeting this week, draw-

Time To 'Fall Back'

With the arrival of fall, we return to Eastern Standard Time.

It's time to "fall back" to Eastern Standard Time, which begins tomorrow. We "fall back" one hour at 2 a.m. Sunday, Oct. 26.

Turn your clocks back one hour before going to bed tonight. Remember to adjust animal feeding and milking schedules accordingly.

"This is a tremendous honor," Lancaster County Poultry Association Ambassador Bobby Bresch, center, said of his appointment. With him are his parents, Lynda and William Bresch. Although Bresch is from a nonfarming family, he became interested in the poultry industry through his involvement in poultry judging for the Penn Manor FFA. See page A22 for more about the association's annual meeting.

Compared to Thursday, slaughter steers sold 10.00-15.00 lower on Monday, with Tuesday's run primarily steady with the Monday supply; the only exception was a hard-fed load of high Choice and Prime steers that sold with a firmer undertone. The quality of the two-day run was about average, with the exception of the above mentioned high Choice and Prime steers. After several weeks (or months) of sharply higher prices most producers forgot what the word steady or lower meant. However, they are going to need to get their dictionaries out as there is some noticeable bearishness back in the finished market. Choice boxed beef cutout values were from 3.00-5.00 lower on Tuesday, at 195.00. Spot live cattle contracts at the Merc have been closed with red ink for the past few days, with Tuesday coming as no exception as October was .20 lower at 97.65. The spot February contract close at 84.07 on Tuesday which may be a sing of where things are heading, at least from Chicago's viewpoint. However, it is important to note that prices remain extremely good. A couple of months ago when we hit 100.00 on a single head it made the papers across the U.S., now the bulk of the cattle are still bringing above 105.00. Slaughter Holstein steers and slaughter heifers sold from 10.00-15.00 lower over the two-day sale. Lean slaughter cows sold steady to .50 lower, with the fleshier supply trading steady to as much as 3.00 lower. Slaughter bulls sold 1.00-2.00 lower on a light test. The two-day run included 514 head of slaughter steers, 54 slaughter heifers, 25 slaughter bulls, 441 slaughter cows, and 42 head of feeders.

Slaughter Steers: High Choice and Prime 2-4 1115-1480 lbs 105.00-110.00, up to 113.00 on Tuesday, mostly 106.00-109.50, fancier 112.00-118.00. Choice 2-3 1140-1495 lbs 102.50-109.00, mostly 103.00-106.00, full 100.00-104.00, Charolais-crosses 104.00-107.00. Calves: Compared to last Thursday, slaughter calves sold mostly steady, with a lighter percentage of the run moving to slaughter. Holstein bull calves going into special-fed veal barns sold mostly steady on Graded Number 1's with Number 2's selling steady to firm. Graded Number 3 bull calves sold steady with a smaller percentage moving directly to slaughter than in weeks past. Holstein heifers sold steady to firm on a lighter test. The PA Department of Agriculture graded 762 head of bulls for the graded sale, with an estimated 88 percent of the graded run going into veal barns.

Slaughter Calves: Number 3, and Utility 60-130 lbs 30.00-80.00 in the graded sale. Standard and Utility in the regular sale 55-125 lbs 50.00-77.00, weaker 20.00-45.00

Compared to last Thursday, slaughter steers sold mostly 15.00 lower, with prices mostly steady with Tuesday. The quality of the run was below average as receipts were extremely light. Very few producers have ever seen prices fluctuate higher and lower like they have over the past couple of weeks. Prices have increased as much as 20.00 in one week, and now we are witnessing just the opposite as prices are 15.00 lower over the same period. Buyer participation was light on Thursday, due mainly to the lack of supplies, with kosher buyers having an extremely tough day as the high Choice and Prime cattle were hard to come by. There are many factors that are weighing on the finished market, although even with a sharply lower market this week, prices for Choice steers are still over 100.00. Also, just because the national markets are bearish does not mean a producer should pull them off feed and get them to town as soon as possible. There are a light number of cattle on feed in the area (especially cattle that have a hard finish on them) and everyone knows if demand stays good or even improves, and numbers are light, prices get higher or at least hold steady. However, if you do decide to send them to town early you can bet there are still some optimists in the sale barn as a package of 1040 lb black steers that might grade Select right now brought 89.00 to go back on feed. Only time, and another 90 days on feed, will tell you if these guys are right; but some feel it's a safer gamble than placing 6 weights on feed that cost 115.00 or more. Holstein steers and slaughter heifers sold a full 10.00 lower when compared to last Thursday. Lean slaughter cows sold 2.00 to 3.00 lower; while fleshier cows sold mostly 1.50 to 2.50 lower, with the exception of Premium White's (65-70 percent lean) trading 4.00 to as much as 6.00 lower. Slaughter bulls sold 1.00-2.00 lower when compared to last Thursday. The supply included 294 head of slaughter steers, 73 head of slaughter heifers, 553 head of slaughter cows, 128 head of slaughter bulls, with 263 head of feeder cattle.

SLAUGHTER STEERS: High Choice and Prime 2-4, 1190-1405 lbs 105.50-110.50, mostly 106.00-109.00, few 113.00, full package 103.00. Choice 2-3, 1110-1495 lbs 100.00-105.00, bulk 101.00-104.00, few 105.50-107.00, full

National Broiler Market At A Glance

Atlanta, Ga.
October 22, 2003
Report Supplied By USDA

Trade sentiment was steady. Demand into all channels covered the full range with best interest for retail ads and fast food promotions. Supplies were usually sufficient to handle current needs. In the parts structure, trading was light to fair. Wings were close to tight, dark meat was adequate, and breast items were more than sufficient with limited demand. In production areas, live supplies were moderate. Weights were mostly desirable, but at times trending heavy.

National Egg Market At A Glance

Atlanta, Ga.
October 22, 2003
Report Supplied By USDA

Prices were higher on all sizes in New York and Chicago. The market tone was fully steady to firm. Demand was light to good, best where features were a factor. Supplies were sufficient to close for the larger sizes and in close balance to very tight for the lighter weights. Breaking stock offerings were sufficient to tight for the moderate to good demand. Light type hens were at least adequate to fully adequate for the fair to moderate demand.

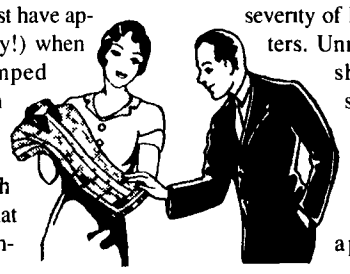
Winter Flannels

The first flannel underwear was used in Boston by Lord Percy's regiment (who must have appreciated it greatly!) when they were encamped on the common in October of 1774. There was barely enough flannel cloth in the town for that one regiment. Flannels came to be almost synonymous with long underwear, thanks to the severity of New England winters. Union suits followed shortly, being the same idea in a united shirt and pants. These days, flannel is more often seen around town as a plaid or striped shirt.

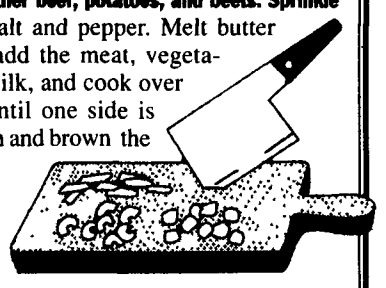


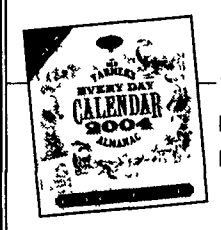
Red-Flannel Hash

2 cups cooked corned beef, diced
2 cups boiled potatoes, diced
1 cup cooked beets, diced
salt and pepper, to taste
3 tbsp. butter
1/4 cup milk

Mix together beef, potatoes, and beets. Sprinkle with salt and pepper. Melt butter in skillet, add the meat, vegetables, and milk, and cook over low heat until one side is brown. Turn and brown the other side.

MAKES 4 SERVINGS.





WIT AND WISDOM FROM THE OLD FARMER'S ALMANAC

- Stick to your winter flannels until your flannels stick to you.
- The world's oldest living inhabitant is a 4,768-year-old bristlecone pine tree in California, named Methuselah.

OPINION

And Still No Budget

It makes us wonder, sometimes, why there hasn't been enough criticism of the Rendell Administration.

Schools and other agencies are clamoring for the final state budget that should have been ready in July. As of presstime, still no state budget.

What makes matters worse, those Rendell campaign promises — raising enough money from vice taxation to create property tax reform — have not come anywhere near planning stage. Now, all we see out of the Rendell camp is a proposed House plan to increase the state sales tax to 6.5 percent. Is this the first time that a Republican-controlled General Assembly would actually side with the Democratic governor on an actual tax increase? Could it happen?

We learned that, according to the Pennsylvania Manufacturers' Association (www.pamanufacturers.org), the U.S. average sales tax is 4.83 percent. Pennsylvania's proposed sales tax increase at 6.5 percent ranks it right up there with Mississippi, Tennessee, and Rhode Island, at 7 percent.

According to the association, the sales tax is needed to raise $600 million to $1.2 billion to cover at least part of Rendell's plans for education spending. The association noted Rendell has the "right" as governor to expect "something" from the Republican lawmakers.

Earlier this year, Rendell proposed raising the personal income tax from 2.8 percent to 3.5 percent.

So where exactly will the solution for the reforms of property tax so heralded by the freshman Rendell governor crew come from?

We were intrigued by the recent introduction of legislation co-sponsored by State. Rep James E. Casorio Jr. (D-56th) that would give every Pennsylvania homeowner a $5,000 homestead exclusion on property taxes, and an additional $10,000 exclusion to low-income seniors who qualify for the state's Property Tax/Rent Rebate Program. That amount would be subtracted from the fair market value of a home before property tax amounts are calculated.

That proposal sounds like a step in the right direction, but it's just a dent. Real property tax reform is needed, and needed now. The state shouldn't simply shift a method of payment from two departments (sales and personal income tax) to the next (property). That is not moving ahead — it's moving*sideways*.

To Be Aware Of The Threat From The Marmorated Stinkbug

A new species of stinkbug has made itself at home in the Lehigh Valley. Beginning in 1999, an unknown stinkbug was observed as a nuisance pest inhabiting houses during fall, winter, and spring. This insect was behaving like the multicolored Asian lady beetle or box elder bug. In 2001, it was identified by Cornell entomologist E. Richard Hoekes as Allomorph hays or the brown marmorated stinkbug.

This species had never before been observed in North America, but is common in eastern Asia where it is a pest of tree fruit and soybeans.

In 2002 and 2003, USDA APHIS entomologist Gary Bernon has worked closely with Lehigh County Cooperative Extension's Karen Bernhard to learn more about the brown marmorated stinkbug's behavior. After observing the behavior of this stinkbug for two seasons, these entomologists have concluded that bug indeed does feed on stone fruit and has the potential to cause economic damage on peaches and apricots. This insect has been found in Lehigh, Northampton, Berks, and upper Bucks and Montgomery counties. Over time, it is expected that the range of this insect will expand.

To Upgrade Your Beef Cattle Herd At The Penn State Beef Cattle Sale

The Penn State Proud! Beef Cattle Sale on Nov. 7 at the University Park campus will share highly desired top-quality Angus genetics with beef producers across the East and reaffirm Penn State's reputation as an institution that maintains a first-class breeding operation.

But those aren't the biggest benefits from the first such sale the university has conducted in 15 years, according to John Comerford, associate professor of dairy and animal science and beef cattle coordinator.

"The most important reason why a university such as Penn State would own cattle is for their educational value," he said. "Sales give us an opportunity to teach students how to prepare cattle for a sale as well as how to create catalogs and advertisements. For that reason, we developed an undergraduate class in livestock merchandising.

"Students in the class will participate in all aspects of the sale activities, including preparing the catalog, submitting advertisements, reviewing budgets, preparing the sale facility, meeting and interacting with buyers and guests, and providing feedback to help improve our sales in the future."

Not since 1988 have Penn State students experienced a cattle sale. "Our department made a strategic decision a few years ago to begin having regular beef sales," Comerford said. "We have been producing more cattle to get ready for this one.

"We have received animals from endowments, gifts, and donations," Comerford said. "We must have a certain number of cattle available to have a sale, because we could gut our program if we sold too many and didn't have enough animals to meet teaching and research needs. But we decided if we are going to produce cattle at Penn State, then let's produce good cattle, and then we can use them to make a contribution toward education of our students as well as making a contribution to the beef industry."

In addition to purebred Angus cattle, some crossbred animals from the college's commercial herd also will be sold, including Simmental crossbreds and 4-H steer prospects.

Starting at noon at the Beef-Sheep Center off Orchard Road, approximately 65 head of cattle will be sold. Many of the cows will have calves at their side and all females will have been bred to top AI sires. A few bull calves will be auctioned, along with one 2-year-old bull. The sale is being managed by one of the college's alumni, Dick Beck, originally from York County, who is in the cattle sale management business in North Carolina.

Beef unit manager Don Nichols stresses that sales are great for students. "We are developing students who will be qualified to merchandise cattle," he said. "They will learn marketing techniques and the subtle things we do to prepare animals for sale. This will teach them something that they can take home. They'll meet people in the business and hopefully make merchandising contacts that might help them later."

Nichols hopes this year's sale will be the first of many during regular intervals at Penn State. "Sales help us to control our cattle inventory and they allow us to offer our genetics to other Angus breeders throughout the country," he said. "With the number of cattle we have and the long-range plan, we could have sales every two or three years. It is something that we have to build on. Sales attract students and help other breeders."

For more information about the beef sale, call (814) 863-0831 or visit the Web at das.psu.edu/beefsale.....

THE LATE GOD

Background Scripture:
2 Peter 3.
Devotional Reading:
Hebrews 10:19-25.

The above title could be taken in two different ways. First, as an allusion to the traditional complaint that God is slow to carry out his promises. Or it could allude to the popular theological tempest of some decades ago over the "death of God." Actually, both are appropriate for what we will be discussing today.

It is obvious that 2 Peter is reacting to criticisms by outsiders: "... scoffers will come in the last days ... saying 'Where is the promise of his coming?'" (3:3,4). The rest of this chapter is a rebuttal to those who are pointing out that early Christian expectations of Christ's imminent return were in error. The scoffers suggest that either they were wrong in expecting it or that God had not kept his promise to them.

In studying 2 Peter 3, it is important that we understand its context. First, many in the early church expected the imminent return of Jesus (including Paul), an expectation that was not fulfilled. Some of Paul's teachings are based upon the belief that they were living in the last days before the Second Coming. This includes his passive attitude to slavery and advice that couples should not marry unless they couldn't control themselves. These were essentially interim teachings. In reading his later letters, we can see that in time Paul realized that the "end of all things" was delayed. Considerably later, when 2 Peter was written, it was obvious that they had been wrong about this matter.

The Apocalyptic Vision

Secondly, many early Christians were deeply influenced by the apocalyptic, a type of religious thought believed to have originated among Zoroastrians in Persia, incorporated into Judaism while the Jews lived in exile there, and influential in the early church. Stoic philosophers were also influenced by it. The language of the apocalyptic is visionary, similar to what occurs in dreams. The book of Revelation (English for the Greek "Apocalypse") is the most prominent example in the New Testament, although 2 Peter also has obviously been influenced by it.

Apocalyptic thought and writing is usually hopelessly pessimistic about the present time, but hopeful of a cataclysmic future scenario in which God will justify the righteous and destroy the wicked — along with, in some cases, the world. Today, apart from some Christian Adventist groups, apocalyptic literature is not important to us because (1) its language is not compatible with the contemporary mind and (2) the failed expectation of Christ's imminent return has left us to be less specific and dogmatic about the Second Coming and the Day of Judgment.

Finally, in the time of 2 Peter, there were Christians who, believing salvation was already secured, were teaching and living in emancipation from moral law: we are saved and, while we're waiting for Christ's return, we are free to live as we choose! (They were not the last aberrant Christians to have preached moral anarchy.)

On What We Can Agree

So, if today we are not of one mind as to when, how, and where the Second Coming will take place, or whether it will mean "the end of all things," what can 2 Peter 3 say to us today? The key is in 3:11. "In view of the fact that all these things are to be dissolved, what sort of people ought you to be? Surely men of good and holy character, who live expecting and earnestly longing for the coming of the day of God." (J.B. Philips). For whatever his purpose may be, God's delay (only from a human perspective) gives us time to live righteously in his world.

Regardless of how we may agree or disagree concerning the Second Coming, while we wait for God's promised fulfillment, we all need to heed the challenge: "But grow in the grace and knowledge of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ" (3:18).

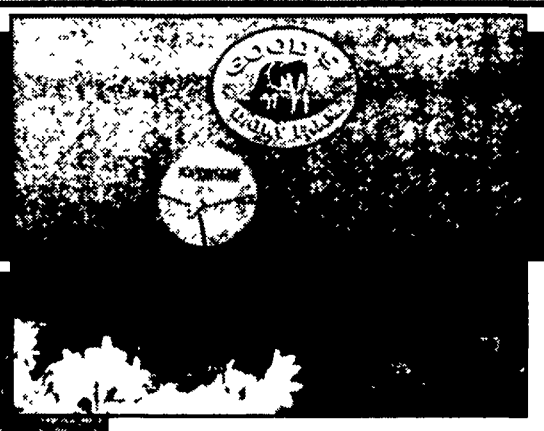
"The biggest benefit is the labor savings."



"In my previous barn, I scraped two times a day; and I was tired of it, not to mention the danger to the cows if a cable snapped. I thought I would not be able to justify the additional cost until my builder suggested a design change which brought the cost down relatively close to the original design.

The biggest benefit to me is the labor savings. Two people can handle all the chores for our herd. I save money not only on labor but also on repairs.

The cows' hooves are healthier, and they show heat better because they are not afraid of slipping. During the five years with slats, I have not lost a single heifer from slipping. The cows stay much cleaner, even with my misting system for cooling them. The water has a place to escape."
- Raymond Good
Good's Dairy Farm

"My only regret is that I wish I had made the pit under the barn deeper."

SEPTEMBER MILK PRODUCTION TIGHT

- Milk down 0.1 percent.
- Milk per cow even.
- Cow numbers still dropping.

The September milk production report released today showed that milk production was down slightly from a year ago.

Milk production in 20 major states totaled 11.6 billion pounds. August revised milk production was 12.1 billion pounds, down 0.9 percent from a year ago. September had no gain in production and no new recovery in productivity.

This report will be viewed as "neutral" by the market. It should neither raise nor lower futures prices.

This USDA report showed that milk production in 20 select states was basically even with September 2002. Cow numbers for 20 major states dropped 7 million head from the prior month's cow numbers to 7.74 million head. This rate of decline was half that of last month, so it suggests the recent decline in cow numbers may be slowing.

Milk production per cow in September was up 6 pounds from a year ago. Again, it suggests we are basically even with a year ago.

The real story is in the individual states. California milk production in September was even with a year ago. This was something the industry had already counted on. Cow numbers rose from 1.658 million head in September 2002 to 1.701 million head in September 2003. But milk per cow in California fell from 1,700 pounds in September 2002 to 1,655 pounds in 2003.

Had milk productivity been even with a year ago, California milk production would have risen 2.6 percent relative to a year ago.

September milk production was down in other states besides California. Florida milk production was down 8.4 percent, Kentucky was down 10.1 percent, Virginia was down 11.6 percent, and Pennsylvania was down 6.5 percent.

In fact, Pennsylvania lost both cows and productivity. There were a few states that offset this decline. Idaho milk production was up 8.7 percent, New Mexico was up 4.4 percent, and Texas was up 7.5 percent.

Milk production in the Badger State, Wisconsin, was up 22 million pounds. This more than offset the 4 million pound decline in California. The market, however, does not seem to notice that Wisconsin can pick up the losses in cheese production created by California. That said, the market is looking into the remainder of the year.

Will there be enough milk and cheese? Will there be a recovery? And, will that recovery depress milk prices?

Average Farm Feed Costs for Handy Reference

To help farmers across the state to have handy reference of commodity input costs in their feeding operations for DHIA record sheets or to develop livestock feed cost data, here's last week's average costs of various ingredients as compiled from regional reports across the state of Pennsylvania.

Remember, these are averages, so you will need to adjust your figures up or down according to your location and the quality of your crop.

The JUG
Clean, Easy Water

✓Visible water. No balls, lids, or flaps. Perfect for the littlest lamb or the biggest bull.

✓Dairy approved. Water can't back-siphon. Won't contaminate your water supply.

The JUG meets approval for funding through conservation programs — check your local agency for available programs and requirements. Safe to use with any water supply system.

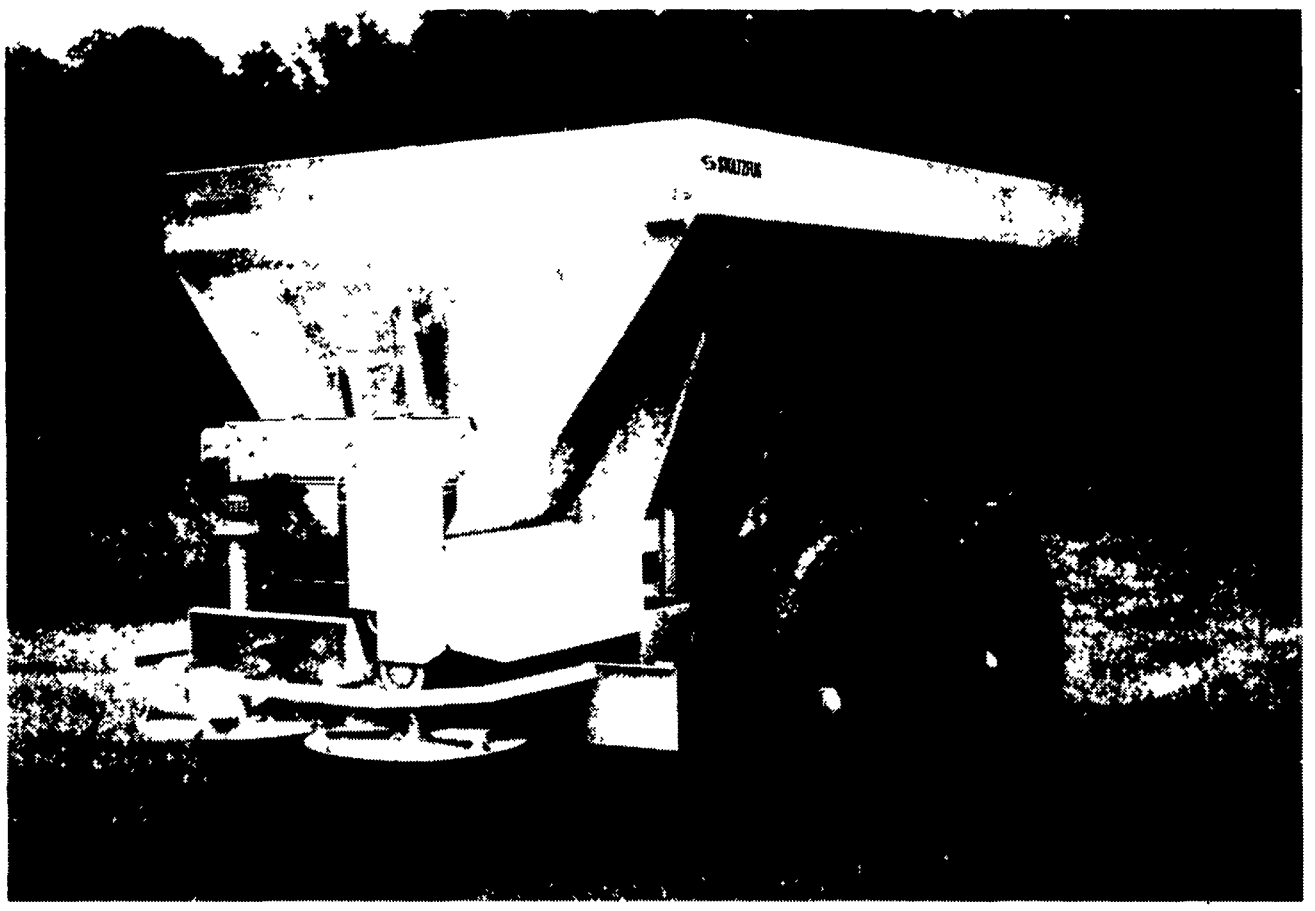
It's Time To Lime!



When spreading stockpiled lime, for example. The Stoltzfus Wet Lime Spreader is likely the most powerful spreader of its kind on the market today. You see, we've been building them since 1945, and farmers are still using Stoltzfus Wet Lime Spreaders they've had for 20, even 30 years. Our special drag chain is 4 times stronger than stainless steel, and handles frozen and heavy stockpiled lime with ease. Plus for spreading compost, composted sludge, poultry litter and certain fertilizers, the WLS is without equal for sheer volume spreading.

Cut your fertilizer bill by liberating nutrients tied up by acid soil.

Use Lime.

He's been spreading the word about his business and chatting with regular customers at the Pennsylvania Farm Show for at least 25 years.

"We feel that, living only half an hour away, (the Farm Show) is in our back yard," said Janice Schnupp Lehman, Dale's daughter. "It's too close not to go."

Schnupp's Grain Roasting, Inc., Lebanon, runs a fleet of five portable grain roasters and one stationary unit to serve dairy and livestock producers. The workforce includes 11 people.

Most customers are within a two-hour radius of Lebanon, but Schnupp's travels farther to roast grain, including trips to Delaware.

Submit Farm Damage Claims

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Agriculture Secretary Dennis C. Wolff urged farmers who suffered crop damage because of Tropical Storm Isabel and recent flooding and windstorms to report damage claims as soon as possible.

"While damage to fruit trees like peaches, apples, and pears, grapes, and other crops may have been apparent during the immediate aftermath of storms, farmers may actually see more damage — particularly to the corn fields — once they begin harvesting," Wolff said. "Farmers should report damage as soon as possible and sign up for crop insurance if they have not done so already."

Farmers experiencing significant crop and/or structural damage should contact their local Farm Service Agency (contact information is available at http://www.fsa.usda.gov/pa/). Those experiencing the loss of insured crops should contact their crop insurance agent as soon as possible.

Crop protection in Pennsylvania is estimated at 15,789 policies, totaling nearly $280 million in protection.

They're Jumping At National Horse Show

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — A rider and equine competitor finish taking a fence at the recent Pennsylvania National Horse Show, conducted here at the Farm Show Complex Oct. 9-18. Competition included junior, open, and amateur owner hunter competition and several North American League finals events. The horse show also included a hunt night with terrier racing and a horn blowing championship, kids' days that featured free pony rides and face painting, appearances from the Budweiser Clydesdales and the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, a "Stars of Showjumping" autograph session, and the Budweiser Grand Prix de Penn National. WILLOW STREET (Lancaster Co.) — Industry and producer members of the Lancaster County Poultry Association gathered Wednesday for their annual banquet at Willow Valley Palm Court.

The event combines business with entertainment. Andy Bradford, president, recapped the organization's achievements during the fiscal year. Some of association's tasks included serving omelets to 150 people at the county extension dinner, hosting an educational banquet for life skills teachers in York, Lebanon, and Lancaster counties; raising $1,500 for the John Schwartz Memorial Fund during a golf outing; serving breakfast to the needy at the Water Street Rescue Mission in honor of the governor; and garnering $4,019 from the fundraising food stand at Ephrata Fair.

Robert (Bobby) Bresch, 16, was introduced as the newly appointed poultry ambassador to represent both Lancaster County and Pennsylvania. Bresch said, "This is a tremendous honor to represent the industry."

Bresch's interest in the poultry industry grew from his involvement on the poultry judging team for Penn Manor FFA. Bresch attended the Pennsylvania's School of Excellence for ag sciences, where he researched the effects of incubation.

Bresch is treasurer of the Manor FFA and participates in public speaking, and raises market swine and capons. He works part time for Ryeride Farms.

Rich Roenigk provided a tribute to Dale Anderson, a formerly active member. When Anderson died, many people contributed to the Schwartz Scholarship Fund in memory of Anderson, and more than doubled the fund. Plans are made to award the first scholarship from the $8,000 fund in the spring.

"Local students attending an agriculture school are eligible," Roenigk said.

Despite the organization's successes, it has become extremely difficult to find board members to head it. An emergency planning meeting will be conducted at the Farm and Home Center, Monday at 3:30 p.m., to decide how to proceed.

"We need four new board members immediately," Bradford said. Anyone interested in the association is invited to attend the Monday meeting.

Berks Extension Association Reflects On 89th Year

Berks County Cooperative Extension Association board members, from left, Judy Hospidor-Earnest, president; Kenneth Sanner, vice president; Travis Werley, treasurer; and Laura Kennedy, secretary.

LOU ANN GOOD
Food And Family Features Editor

LEESPORT (Berks Co.) — Berks County Extension Association serves as a resource to many, but Monday evening was an opportunity for staff, volunteers, and community members to learn together.

At the 89th annual banquet, Mary Bach, Pennsylvania's consumer advocate, presented compelling evidence for consumers to know the laws in order to become shopping savvy.

As extension enters its 90th year, Richard Kauffman, director, said that many challenges lie ahead. Especially pressing are the funding uncertainties. Extension must find new ways to fund extensive programing. Publication fees for 4-H have been implemented. Staffing continues to be downsized, and new ways to continue to operate are being explored.

Although changes are necessary, Kauffman said that one thing will not change. "Our focus on our clientele and dedicated service to Berks County will remain."

Judy Hospidor-Earnest, president of the board, said, "This year's budget challenges have strengthened us as a board and as a statewide community."

This past year, the extension hosted the first legislative committee breakfast, 4-H cost recovery program iniatives, and the implementation of a network computer system.

The family living advisory committee guides programing to meet community needs. Some of these outreaches included programs on coping with stress, grief, and diabetes and other health problems, and weight control. Workshops are also offered on sweatshirt recycling, and creating hats and scarves to donate to local emergency shelters.

Food safety is big issue that extension programing addresses through workshops, articles, and radio reports. More than 300 food handlers completed the extension course for sanitation certification.

Better Kid Care and family strength programing offer additional resources.

Through 4-H programing in schools and community, youth are served.

Some of the adult workshops include teaching on grazing, gardening, horticulture, turf management, marketing farm products, and providing educational support for farmers and landowners.

Extension outreach is not limited to Berks County. Fay Strickler, family living agent, served as the national president for cooperative extensions' professional organization representing more than 8,000 members.

Genex Cooperative Continues Farm Show Exhibit Tradition

NEW HOLLAND (Lancaster Co.) — For about 40 years, Genex Cooperative has taken part in the Pennsylvania Farm Show meeting with showgoers, sharing the latest in dairy genetics and reproductive services.

Originally named Southeast Breeders Cooperative, then Atlantic Breeders Cooperative, this local bull stud supplier merged in 1996 into Genex Cooperative, a part of Cooperative Resources International (CRI).

Plans for the 2004 Farm Show are still in the early stages, noted district manager Dave Zimmerman. However, Genex will have its booth at the Farm Show Complex featuring the latest sire summary information, products to assist farmers in achieving better reproductive performance, and farm supplies such as calf coats and teat dips.

Zimmerman stresses that Genex is known for maintaining a high standard in the AI industry with "high production and lifetime net merit."

The August sire summaries back up this statement with six sires in the Holstein breed with over $600 on Lifetime Net Merit. The summaries also list 24 sires in the top 10 percent for the breed's Lifetime Net Merit.

A Sosa daughter, Sosa is Genex's number one lifetime net merit sire and the number one milk bull in the industry.

For the beef breeders who will be in attendance at the Farm Show, Genex will have information on its beef AI organization, which is one of the largest after the company purchased the Alta Genetics beef program.

Genex continues to grow and maintain a competitive edge in the genetics field. Their mission statement: "Provide products and services as effectively as possible to maximize the profitability of members and customers worldwide, while maintaining a strong cooperative."

Zimmerman said, "We have always had our representatives on the road. (As Genex grows, the company has) a larger product line and better genetics available to the producer more for producers to choose from."

Eastern Cornbelt Direct Feeder Cattle Summary — Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, and Ohio — Compared to last week, Compared to last week, feeder cattle were mostly 1.00-2.00 higher Holstein steers were unevenly steady. Demand was moderate but the continuing grain harvest season slowed trading to a standstill in some areas. The strongest demand is for yearling cattle but they are becoming increasingly harder to find. The sharply higher slaughter cattle market and stronger futures prices supported feeder cattle prices early in the week. Confirmed sales about 36% beef type steers, 39% heifers and 25% Holstein steers. Approximately 86% of the cattle marketed this week weighed over 600 lb. Confirmed sales1200 this week, 1550 last week and 800 last year.

Diehl Farms Sweep Shropshire Sheep Show

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Fifty-five years in the sheep industry, hard work and determination have paid off for the J.L. and G.L. Diehl farms. Exhibiting a flock of over ten Shropshire breeding sheep at the Keystone International Livestock Exposition, owner Gale Diehl won various awards including Premier Breeder and Premier Exhibitor.

The Diehl farms' sheep also won the titles of Champion Sale Ewe, Reserve Champion Sale Ewe, Yearling Sale Ewe, Fall Ewe, Fall Ram and Pair of Rams.

Diehl, along with son John and grandsons Chris and Mike have exhibited their flock at livestock shows including numerous county fairs and the National Shropshire Show held at the Ohio State Fair. On their Deerfield, Ohio, farm, the family raises beef cattle and approximately 45 brood ewes that birthed 75 lambs for market and breeding projects this past lambing season. "The results of the show tell me that our breeding program has been successful for the past few years. We seem to be moving in the right direction," said Diehl.

Diehl also stated that he prefers to attend this show over others. He and over 1,400 other exhibitors at the Keystone International Livestock Exposition are under a new roof this year after recent renovation of the Pennsylvania Farm Show Complex. "The expansion has allowed exhibitors more space to prepare their animals for show, as well as provided additional areas for the livestock to be showcased and sold," stated Secretary of Agriculture, Dennis C Wolff.

Farmers Air Concerns

Dr. Phil Stone introduced U.S. Rep. Bob Goodlatte, (Va.-6th). Goodlatte chairs the House Agriculture Committee.

"Nobody in Congress is more attentive to the needs of agriculture," said Stone.

Congressman Goodlatte went straight to the heart of the blows dealt to agriculture in recent times, not only to Shenandoah Valley farmers but those beyond. Hurricane Isabels unleashed devastation was the most recent disaster in a sequence of misfortunes to hit the industry. Add flash floods, ice, snow, avian influenza, low dairy prices, and a drought.

Yet, when they are compared to those of other countries, U.S. farming operations are proved the most efficient and productive. Goodlatte reported that while only two percent of the U.S. population is active in farm production, U.S. households overall are able to buy all their food for a mere nine percent of total income.

So between surplus production and exports balance becomes an issue. Agriculture in the area of the U.S. trade surplus is a tremendously important issue to American farmers and ranchers.

"Its important to negotiate, but agriculture should be at the forefront," Goodlatte said, alluding to trade talks.

Deputy Secretary of Agriculture Jim Moseley said he is concerned about homeland security, because the terrorism conflict is different than all others we have dealt with in the world. He said the nature of it is very complex, however, and each citizen has to take some responsibility for its prevention.

"What you do as an agriculture operation is your decision," he said, but reminded everyone in the room about their proximity to the nations Capitol.

Location is one reason farmers and ranchers in the west arent as worried about their operations. The miles existing between Washington and themselves are perceived as a security zone.

Moseley indicated that in order to do its job right, the U.S. Department of Agriculture must find new and better ways to fulfill its function.

"The Department of Agriculture is there to try to change things," Moseley said. "We must change with the changes. We want to listen. Help us."

Undersecretary for Food Safety Elsa Murano drew smiles from the audience in describing herself an educator, researcher, and college professor disguised as a bureaucrat, then turned serious about her topic.

"Food safety is important because we are all consumers," she said.

Two years ago when she came to Washington, Murano said she didnt realize that politics played such a part in food safety.

Policies must be based on scientific research.

"The challenge is to communicate food safety to the public," she said. 'We need to think of ourselves as a link in a chain."

She cited statistics about the increased number of USDA food inspectors at food processing plants every day.

One question is: should the producers themselves have some responsibility for the safety of their product? Murano said producers now, more than ever, are being encouraged to reduce or eliminate human pathogens. She said guidelines are being prepared that will support this effort.

"We are trying to assess vulnerability and plug the holes," she said.

Food in some cases is infected because mistakes are being made at the time of preparation. Perhaps the person preparing it failed to wash their hands. Perhaps the utensils being used arent clean. Perhaps the food was not refrigerated promptly.

The other crucial aspect about food safety is countries can use it as a tool in trade negotiations.

The Chief Agriculture Negotiator from the Office of the United States Trade Representative (USTR) Allen Johnson discussed needing to find markets for this countrys agriculture as the industry continues to become more and more efficient.

The scope of agriculture is very great. In trade negotiations, when it comes to bringing about implementation, and then making sure whatever has been agreed upon can also be enforced, there are challenges.

"You cant assume a country is going to do what it is supposed to do," he said.

A case in point is Russia with regard to U.S. poultry. That experience hit home in Goodlattes district, where Rockingham County, poultry production leader, is located.

Around the globe there are other issues, however, in trade negotiations with other countries. The Trade Promotion Authority can exercise its authority, Johnson said.

"The USDA and USTR work together," Johnson said. 'We work very hard to get the very best deal for U.S. agriculture. United States farmers are very efficient. The other side is not. They get very nervous about that."

During audience participation dairy farmer, Sidney Grove, expressed concern about the pricing collapse for dairy farmers. He pointed out there is an increasing flow of dairy into the country when prices are at an historically low levels. Then the farmer has to turn to the Farm Bill to get help for the farmer.

"Sometimes it seems our actions are counterproductive," he said. "USDA has been part of the problem."

According to Goodlatte, the problem is caused by the production of milk protein concentrates. He said that policies right now favor nonfat dried milk, and the program has to be adjusted to the demand.

Teresa Glass, a horse industry producer, wanted to discuss the Horse Slaughter Prevention Acts impact on the industry.

Another person wondered about having greater flexibility with regard to how people use retirement accounts when it comes to farm preservation.

That was a topic that interested the congressman greatly, although he said that sort of thing becomes part of a larger legislative process. He definitely wants more input on the subject.

Marlin Burkholder has a small farming operation. He asked, what is being done to improve the situation for animal waste disposal for small producers?

He was told about the creation of energy incentives to get animals to slaughter facilities.

Following a question-and-answer session at the 2003 Agriculture Conference, Teresa Glass of Rockbridge County and Bill Joseph, general manager of the Shenandoah Valley Livestock Market, discuss their concerns about horses. During the session, one question concerned the Horse Slaughter Prevention Act.

Since a case of BSE was discovered in one cow in Alberta in May, the border has been closed to any live Canadian cattle coming into the U.S.

"The BSE deal is such a huge blow," Hirsche said. "We (the U.S. and Canada) are so intertwined, when you pull one arm out of it, the whole industry is out of whack."

Beef consumption in Canada has increased more than 60 percent since the crisis began, Hirsche said. Stepped-up promotion and supportive consumers are the reasons. But that extra demand hasn't solved what Hirsche sees as the biggest problem — the accumulation of cull bulls in the country.

Beef imports have actually increased in Canada to meet demand, while Canadian cull bulls are being held by ranchers simply because there is no place to slaughter them, according to Hirsche.

"In July and August we have imported more beef from the U.S. and Australia then ever before," he said.

Most packing plants in Canada are only equipped to process finished steers and heifers, not the much bigger cull bulls, Hirsche said. Before the border closing, cull bulls were generally shipped to U.S. packing plants.

According to Hirsche, the problem started five years ago when major U.S. packers built facilities in Canada specifically for handling finished cattle.

"We (had) not killed a cull bull in Canada for five years," Hirsche said, noting that one small packing facility in Quebec was opened this summer to handle cull bulls.

Hirsche estimated "probably thousands" of cull bulls are awaiting slaughter in his country, along with some cull cows.

Government subsidies for producers and packers were quickly used up when live finished cattle prices plummeted from $100 to $38 a hundredweight about a month after the BSE was reported.

"All the subsidies are gone," Hirsche said. "As a producer, I have not gotten one cent."

An Oct. 21, USDA market summary reported 1,000-1,200-pound direct-sale select slaughter steers in Alberta sold for $60 a hundredweight. Select slaughter steers at Ontario auctions went for $52 a hundredweight.

Meanwhile, U.S. live cattle prices soared above $100 a hundredweight, peaking at $120-$130 the week that ended Oct. 17.

"Americans don't realize how integrated we are into the system," Hirsche said. "And Canadians don't either, nor did we care that much (before the crisis hit)."

To give an example of the degree of crackdown, Hirsche said he had a friend traveling from Canada to the U.S. with a McDonald's hamburger — and the customs officer at the border made him throw it out.

"It's been a real nightmare," Hirsche said.

SOY-BASED BIODIESEL.

You grow soybeans. Your soybean checkoff helped develop soy-based biodiesel. Government and industry studies show it's good for your engines, the environment, and U.S. farmers.

Farmers are the second-largest consumers of diesel fuel in the U.S. So when you request biodiesel, fuel suppliers will listen. Ask your fuel supplier to carry B2 - a two-percent blend of pure, ASTM D-6751 quality soy-based biodiesel. It's available throughout the United States, so why not ask for it and use it?

Using B2 on your farm supports the industry's growth, by increasing the number of suppliers for high-quality biodiesel fuel. And, a B2 blend provides increased lubricity for your engines, a boost in cetane, and reduced dependence on foreign oil

Studies show that if every farmer used B2, we could utilize more than 50 million bushels of soybeans per year - the combined 2001 annual soybean harvests of Delaware, Maryland, Pennsylvania, New Jersey and New York. Imagine the potential.

ASK FOR IT. PUMP IT. PROFIT.

Raw Milk

Interest in raw milk is growing among both dairy farmers and consumers, according to raw milk advocates and ag officials who gathered Monday at the Lancaster Farm and Home Center. The meeting was organized by the Pennsylvania Association for Sustainable Agriculture (PASA).

The group heard details about the permitting process for raw milk sales, discussions on the health benefits of raw milk and its products, and stories from two out-of-state dairymen who market them.

"The whole movement is basically about honesty," said Tim Wightman, organic dairy producer from Wisconsin.

Wightman has struggled for several years to find a way to sell his raw milk in Wisconsin, a state that bans the outright sale of raw milk or its products. Eventually, after spending $35,000 in legal fees and losing an estimated $100,000 in income, Wightman was able to form a limited liability corporation that allows consumers to buy shares in the farm. Since the raw milk and products can be legally consumed by owners of the farm, the arrangement is approved by law.

Wightman said that Pennsylvania farmers have a long history of direct marketing and are fortunate to having a raw milk permitting process.

Pennsylvania's policy allows farmers to sell fluid raw milk and hard cheese with a permit. However, selling products made from raw milk, such as butter, yogurt, and soft cheese, is prohibited.

"You actually have a state-sponsored raw milk program," Wightman said. "Don't let it go away."

Wightman has his milk tested routinely for disease-carrying organisms and posts results for customers to see. He urged farmers to take an active role in assuring milk quality for consumers, including making sure their cows are certified Johne's-free.

"Big companies can never match the job you do at controlling milk quality," he said.

"That's called America — freedom of choice."

Maureen Diaz with son Wilson, 6 months, says it should be up to consumers to choose clean milk products.

Wightman said "people are coming out of the woodwork" to buy raw milk and products such as artisan cheeses. Across the country, "we revere things that are handmade because nobody does it anymore."

Mark McAfee, California dairy producer, told his story from a state that allows raw milk sales. McAfee of Organic Pastures Dairy sells raw milk and its products in 325 stores throughout California, and has even shipped colostrum (milk from newly-calved cows) to countries around the world.

"Raw milk has never been banned (in California)," McAfee said, "although there's a tremendous number of hoops to go through to sell raw milk on the shelf."

The health benefits of raw milk are becoming better-known, according to McAfee. He pointed out increasing claims that problems such as autism, asthma, and attention deficit disorder (ADD) are alleviated by a diet that includes raw milk and/or its products.

Immunity can also be increased by drinking raw milk and colostrum, McAfee said. Colostrum from his cows was shipped to Asian countries to help protect health workers during the SARS outbreak.

Before the war in Afghanistan and Iraq, Navy Seals in southern California were "drinking the heck out of our raw milk and colostrum" to bolster their immune systems against foreign diseases they might encounter in the Middle East, McAfee said.

Raw milk contains compounds that act as safety mechanisms and kill disease-carrying organisms. Pasteurization actually inactivates these compounds, according to McAfee.

As long as the milk is clean from the start, "these (safety mechanisms) keep raw milk safe," he said.

McAfee referred to recent studies at the University of California-Davis which show that pathogens do not survive when added to raw milk from his farm.

Producing that kind of raw milk means the cows have to be grass-fed, kept in a clean, stress-free environment, and not given antibiotics, he said.

"The reason you don't have pathogens in this milk is that you've changed the internal physiology of the cow (from the conventional system)," McAfee said. "It's really not organic — it's more than that."

McAfee believes selling raw milk is a way for dairy farmers to add a lot of value to their product. In California, he gets $70 per hundredweight (about $6 per gallon wholesale) for raw, certified organic milk.

Taylor Diaz asks why consumers have easy access to tobacco when raw milk products are so regulated.

His organic, raw colostrum retails for $90 a gallon, according to McAfee.

"Don't cheat yourself," he said. "The value of a pasture-raised, organic product is very high."

McAfee encouraged farmers to work together with government officials to build a thriving raw milk industry and help to teach the public about its value.

"The more we stick together, the more we're going to win this battle of, basically, education," he said.

The ability of raw milk to create health as one part of a wholesome diet is "as close to a miracle as you can get," McAfee said. But it has to be viewed as a preventative, not as something that will necessarily bring people back from the brink of death.

"There are a lot of people out there who have saved their lives on raw milk and raw milk products," he said. "There are also some who have gone overboard.

"This is about prevention. It's about living well and eating well so you can have a healthy life."

On hand at the meeting were Bobby McLean, director of the Bureau of Food Safety and Laboratory Services under the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture (PDA), and Roy Malik, PDA's supervising milk inspector for much of the state, to discuss Pennsylvania's raw milk permitting process.

"Over the last few months, I've received what I'd call a warm welcome to the raw milk issue," McLean said, referring to calls to the PDA over a rumor that raw milk sales were being outlawed in the state.

The PDA's stance on raw milk is that "we're not trying to prevent anyone from getting anything that would be beneficial to their health," McLean said. "We want that product to be safe."

The law that prohibits retailing raw milk products such as butter and yogurt has been in effect since 1935. The PDA's job is to interpret the law and make sure it is being followed — not to change it, McLean said. In order for the law to be changed, a new version would have to be drafted and approved by the Pennsylvania legislature.

"We as a regulatory agency cannot turn our backs on the regulations that are in place."

As for raw milk itself, McLean said he recently tried a glass — and liked it.

Roy Malik explained the two types of permits for selling raw milk in the state: the customer-container permit and the pre-filled container permit.

The customer-container permit allows farmers to sell milk to customers who bring their own jugs. For farmers who have this type of permit, Malik recommended keeping clean, disposable plastic containers on hand, in case the customer needs one. The pre-filled container permit requires an approved bottling and capping facility, and there's "a lot more cost involved," Malik said.

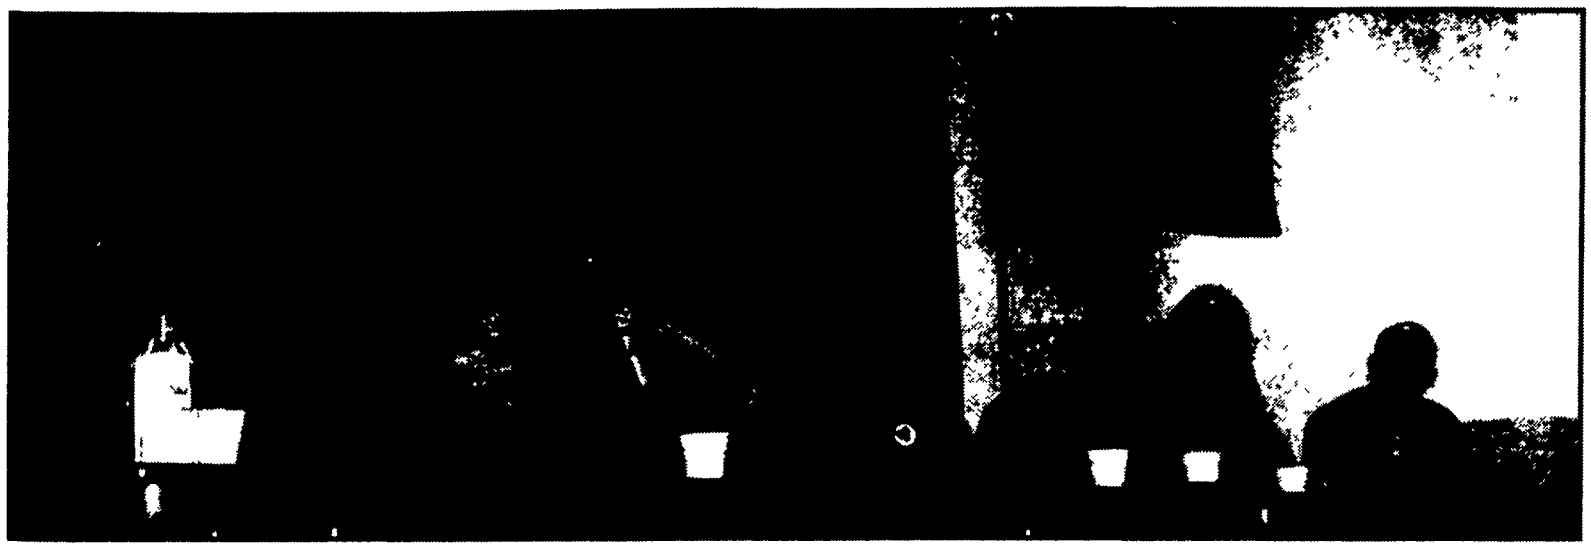
However, marketing potential grows considerably with a prefilled container permit because the milk can be sold in stores and farmers' markets anywhere in the state.

Raymond Fisher, of Centre County, was one of many Plain dairy farmers attending the meeting. He milks about 35 cows in partnership with his wife near Rebersburg. Two weeks ago, they began bottling milk under a prefilled container permit. Their raw milk sales are already increasing, according to Fisher.

"We knew the demand was there," he said.

Either kind of permit holder must test the herd annually for TB and brucellosis, have their water tested two times a year, and conduct monthly milk tests for standard plate count for bacteria and somatic cell count. The PDA checks each step of the production and milk-handling process.

The state doesn't charge a fee for permitting, but requires the tests on a regular basis. Total testing fees for a herd of 40 cows add up to roughly $100 a month, according to Malik.



Panel members handling raw milk questions are, from left, Mark McAfee, California dairyman; Roy Malik, state milk inspector; Tim Wightman, Wisconsin dairyman; Jerry Brunetti, ag consultant; Carlton Busko, medical doctor; and Bobby McLean, director of Pennsylvania's Bureau of Food Safety and Laboratory Services.

Malik also recommended farmers implement the state's Johne's program to make sure their herd is free of this chronic, intestinal disease.

Studies in recent years have shown possible links between Johne's and Crohn's disease, a chronic intestinal disorder in humans.

At the same time, there is controversy about whether or not normal pasteurization actually kills the Johne's organism, according to Malik.

Malik said he talks to the state veterinarian regularly for updates on the Johne's issue.

For farmers who sell both raw milk and milk that will be pasteurized, Malik said a common way to help assure high quality of the raw milk is to keep two separate bulk tanks for storing milk. The first number of cows can be milked with extra care and cleanliness for the raw milk. Then the farmers "can let their hair down" and milk the rest of the herd like a normal dairy farmer would.

"Our raw milk history is phenomenal," Malik said, noting that he is aware of just one raw milk-related illness ever having occurred in Pennsylvania. Complaints about short-term digestive problems tend to come from first-time drinkers, he said.

In his region, which includes the southeast and central parts of the state, Malik said he has been making three or more "raw milk visits" most weeks in recent months — visits to farmers who are considering applying for a raw milk permit. Although not nearly all those dairies follow through, there is "absolutely" an increasing interest in selling raw milk, he said.

Malik also pointed that people owning just one cow are allowed to sell raw milk products.

Jerry Brunetti of Agri-Dynamics Consulting, and Carlton Busko, MD, a general practice doctor with offices in Lancaster and Halifax, joined a panel discussion following the individual speakers.

In his medical practice, Busko focuses on metabolic restoration and disease therapy that includes raw milk and raw milk products in the diet. Brunetti is a leader in the eastern Pennsylvania chapter of Weston Price Foundation, an international group that promotes nutrient-dense foods, including raw milk and meat from grass-fed livestock. Panel members addressed a wide variety of questions from the audience, from health effects to the permitting process.

Brian Snyder, PASA executive director, moderated the meeting.

"Raw milk is an issue that is increasingly important to farmers and consumers," Snyder said. "Folks at the PDA are just waking up to the demand for raw milk."

Dan Fisher, ag consultant and natural food advocate from Blue Ball, called the event "an historic meeting."

Project Grass Conference Set Oct. 27-28

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — Pennsylvania Project Grass will conduct its Second Annual Statewide Conference and Grazing Farm Field Day on Oct. 27-28 at Days Inn, State College.

The two-day event will feature a grazing farm tour, an awards banquet, and a number of presentations on grazing and the work of Project Grass, a statewide grazing partnership organization.

Topics and speakers for Monday, Oct. 27, include:

- How to Form a Cooperative, Tanya Turner of Keystone Development Center.
- Animal Grazing Nutrition, Kathy Soder, ARS Pasture Research Lab, University Park.
- Carbon Sequestration: What is it and Why is it Important?, Curtis Dell, ARS Pasture Research Lab, University Park.

The five regional Project Grass chapters will also report on their accomplishments and there will be an overview of the Project Grass strategic plan.

The grazing tour bus to Huntingdon County will leave Days Inn at 8 a.m. Tuesday, Oct. 28.

MAKING USE OF LOW-QUALITY FORAGE

Philip E. Wagner
Extension Agent — Dairy
Franklin County

High-quality forage is an important factor in obtaining efficient milk production, normal milk composition and quality, and good health and reproduction. Whenever possible, the forage ration should contain a minimum of 60 percent TDN on a dry-matter basis. In addition, it should be relatively low in toxic factors such as nitrates and molds and be reasonably palatable.

Wet conditions during growth and harvest often lower nutrient content and palatability. This has especially been the case this year for a lot of small grain silage, hay crop silage, and dry hay. I have listed some feed management points to keep in mind when incorporating low quality forages into the ration following an adverse weather year like we have just gone through in Pennsylvania.

• Limit intakes of high fiber, low energy forage with less than 55 percent TDN to 1.4 to 1.8 pounds of dry matter per CWT of body weight daily in order to avoid depressions in total dry matter intake and milk production. Fill in the ration with better forages. While intake should be limited, low-quality forage may have to be fed heavier than usual to attain even limited intakes. This enables animals to choose the better portions. Sprinkling with a mixture of molasses and water sometimes will help attain minimum intake.

• Adjust amounts and kinds of forage fed to provide at least 58-60 percent TDN in the forage dry matter fed to milking animals. Use of corn silage and fall cuttings of hay crop can help attain this goal.

• Lower-quality forage may be used relatively heavier for young stock at more than 10-12 months old and dry cows, if the ration is properly balanced.

• Avoid feeding spoiled or putrefied forage, especially to cows close to freshening or in early lactation. Such feed may adversely affect intakes, production and health, including a greater risk of a displaced abomasum.

• Feed forages containing a lot of mold or mustiness in reduced amounts when possible. Higher intakes of such forage may reduce total dry matter intake and performance as well as reduce resistance to disease. Keep air contamination with mold at a minimum to prevent fungal infections in the lung or reproductive tract.

• Watch for signs of mycotoxin problems such as an unexplained reduction of total dry matter intake, reduced production, and a black or blood-tinged diarrhea. Test suspected feeds including small grains, high moisture corn, and dry shelled corn this year for mycotoxins. Extremely moldy feed may have less mycotoxin present than material with few signs of mold present. Separately test material further removed from the very moldy spots, as well as the badly molded feed.

• Consider purchase of better forage when necessary to maintain adequate performance. When no high quality alfalfa hay or haylage is available on the farm, consider purchasing enough good alfalfa to feed 2-3 pounds of dry matter per head daily. Feeding even these limited amounts of alfalfa may help improve feed utilization and performance. Alfalfa should contain at least 19-20 percent crude protein on a DM basis to be considered for this use.

• Test all forages and grains at least several times throughout the year and properly balance rations.

• Try certain feeds or additives to enhance performance on low-quality forages. This would include such items as alfalfa pellets, sodium bicarbonate, and live cell yeast culture.

• Heavier concentrate feeding may be needed on some farms with lower quality forage.

The current and upcoming feeding season will present a challenge on many dairy farms. Dairy producers will need to work closely with their dairy nutrition consultant to strike a balance between production performance, cow health, and economical rations.

'A Bull Named Sue' Sells For $30,000

DAVE LEFEVER
Lancaster Farming Staff

WELLSVILLE (York Co.) — JM Sue, a 30-month-old Longhorn bull bred and raised in York County, recently sold for $30,000.

Shawn Pequignot of Crazy Cattle Company, Wellsville, sold the record-breaking animal to Hudson Longhorns of Mississippi.

The bull was bred by John Muir of JM Longhorns, Glen Rock. Pequignot had purchased it as a 6-month-old calf.

Pequignot said the bull unofficially sports the longest horns of any bull in the country, measuring 65 inches — almost five and a half feet — from tip to tip.

Horn length is a highly desired trait among Longhorn breeders, according to Pequignot.

Pequignot keeps about 25 Longhorn cattle on his 50-acre farm. He has been raising this old breed for seven years.

Pequignot, a builder, first got interested in the cattle while building a house next to a farm where some Longhorns were kept.

Prevention Is Best Cure For Flies In Poultry Houses

DAVE LEFEVER
Lancaster Farming Staff

MANHEIM (Lancaster Co.) — Fly control is becoming more crucial on commercial poultry operations, in part because people are moving ever closer to farms.

Greg Martin, Penn State poultry agent, delivered that message and a number of pest-control pointers at a recent Poultry Management and Health Seminar at Kreider's Restaurant, Manheim.

"The 'city' is moving our way," Martin said. "Neighbors may have a different tolerance level for flies, odor, and dust than you do."

Martin outlined integrated pest management (IPM) methods for a variety of pests, including beetles, mosquitos, mites, lice, rodents, birds, cats, and people.

But the main focus of his presentation was on how to master the pesky, prolific housefly.

Martin said that good IPM practices can be portrayed by a pyramid, similar to the USDA food pyramid.

Prevention practices are at the base of the IPM pyramid, representing the first and most important steps to take in controlling pests.

Basic preventative steps include good sanitation measures and environmental controls. These are much less costly and labor-intensive than measures to control flies after they've become a big problem, Martin pointed out.

"Water is the number one key element in fly control," Martin said.

For that reason, poultry managers need to restrict water (and feed) spillage as much as possible, rotate waterers so that spill areas can dry out, and maintain a good ventilation system.

Scouting for flies is important, according to Martin. There are a number of tools that can be used for monitoring populations, including jug traps, walking sticky tape, and speck cards.

"Any repeatable method works," Martin said. He mentioned one producer who uses masking tape successfully for checking fly numbers.

As pest populations grow, it may become necessary to move up the IPM pyramid and start using methods that better match the level of infestation. These include physical and mechanical methods (such as traps, lures, and fly 'zappers') and biological controls (such as parasitic wasps).

At the top of the IPM pyramid are chemical controls, including conventional pesticides.

Not only are these materials more costly, there is also increasing evidence of pests becoming resistant to some of them, Martin noted.

"Chemicals are really the last ditch effort," he said.

One new practice being tested by Penn State for pest control is in-house composting of manure piles in the pits underneath layer hen floors.

Carbon sources such as shredded newspaper are added to the manure, facilitating the composting process and generating heat. Temperatures of more than 100 degrees Farenheit might kill fly larvae, according to Martin.

Composting also reduces mouse numbers by creating an environment that is too hot for the little rodents to survive in the manure piles.

Forced air drying of poultry manure is another option for fly control. When manure moisture levels are less than 50 percent, flies are unable to eat, Martin said.

IPM is newer to the poultry industry than it is in some other areas of agriculture.

"A lot of the things I've talked about the vegetable people have been doing for years and years," Martin said.

For more information about IPM, check the Penn State Website at http://paipm.cas.psu.edu.

About 20 people from the poultry industry attended the meeting. Paul Patterson and Michael Hulet, poultry science professors at Penn State, were also on hand for the seminar.

Owner-Bred Entries Fill Carbon County Goat Show

DEANNA CUNFER
Carbon Co. Correspondent

PALMERTON (Carbon Co.) — The 4-H market and 4-H and Open dairy goat shows were recently conducted during the Carbon County Fair.

Judge Gwen Soult, of Perry County, raises and exhibits Alpine and Nubian goats. Soult is attending Bucknell University, majoring in rural sociology.

As champion fitter and champion showman of the 4-H market goat competition, Soult selected Laura Mazur from the intermediate class. Mazur, 14, is the daughter of Diane Fisher and completed the sheep, dairy beef, and market goat projects this year. Mazur, of Too Busy Acres near Weatherly, is in the ninth grade at Weatherly High School.

Soult selected th 62-pound winner of the medium weight class, exhibited by Sarah Miller, as her grand champion market goat. Soult described the champion as having the highest body capacity while being structurally correct with outstanding muscle. During the annual 4-H livestock sale, Houser Auctioneers of New Ringgold was high bidder at $800 for this animal.

Reserve champion market goat honors went to the heavy weight class winner, the bred-and-owned 69-pound entry of Josh Kemmerer. Kemmerer, 18, is in his last year of 4-H competition and starting his second year of studies at Penn State-Lehigh campus majoring in ag engineering.

Sarah Miller, 14, is shown with her 62-pound grand champion market goat of the Carbon County Fair. Miller was also named the reserve champion fitter of the market goat competition. Houser Auctioneers, New Ringgold, was the high bidder at the 4-H livestock sale at a bid of $800.

In the dairy goat show, Sarah Miller's Nubian, Jasperhollow Jarrett Mink, took home both the 4-H and open senior and grand champion Nubian doe rosettes. This doe also captured the Best Doe of Show banner, competing against a LaMancha shown by Kevin Miller and a recorded grade doe shown by Josh Kemmerer.

Maryland Receives $440,975 For Risk Management Education

ANNAPOLIS, Md. — A total of $440,975 in new partnership agreements with the USDA Risk Management Agency will allow the Maryland Department of Agriculture (MDA) to build on its success in helping farmers manage their business risks with crop insurance.

Maryland is among 15 states nationwide targeted by the USDA to boost participation rates in crop insurance.

Recent efforts by MDA and the University of Maryland to educate farmers on the value of crop insurance have been effective. Crop insurance participation increased by 15.8 percent over the last two years, with more than $162.4 million of protection on 715,484 acres covered in 2003.

After the devastating drought of 2002, Maryland farmers received $23.4 million from crop insurance, which is almost equal to the amount farmers had received over the previous five years combined.

"Crop insurance payments helped support our farmers during an incredibly tough year," said Maryland Secretary of Agriculture Lewis R. Riley. "Risk management is among the tools that will help keep Maryland farmers in the business of farming. Like diversification of farm enterprises, sound business management and good stewardship, it will help preserve agriculture and farmland for the next generation."

The crop insurance education and promotion project will combine the work of MDA staff and University of Maryland Cooperative Extension faculty. Among the project's goals is the development of a computer software package which will allow University of Maryland faculty to work with farmers to detail the value of crop insurance to their operation. MDA will promote crop insurance at farmer meetings, nursery farmer events, and through a variety of targeted projects.

"Crop insurance is a valuable risk management tool. These federal partnership agreements will be carefully managed to benefit Maryland farmers," said Riley.

Maryland's funding comes from two separate federal partnership agreements: $379,275 to MDA and $61,700 of $343,000 awarded to the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture from the USDA for a regional educational effort on risk management for farmers.

Youth Livestock Sale Highlights Beaver Community Fair

MIDDLEBURG (Snyder Co.) — Forty-seven members of Snyder County 4-H clubs and FFA chapters sold their animals at the Beaver Fair Youth Livestock Sale, Thursday, Sept. 18.

National Feeder Cattle Weekly Review

St. Joseph, Mo.

Report Supplied By USDA

NATIONAL FEEDER & STOCKER CATTLE SUMMARY - Week Ending Oct. 17 — Total Receipts: 461,900; last week 487,800; last year 429,400. Direct. 60,500; last week 95,700; last year 61,500. Video/Internet. 17,100; last week 35,000; last year 25,000. Auctions: 384,300; last week 357,100, last year 342,900. This weeks reported auction volume had just 28 percent over 600 lbs and 44 percent heifers.

Compared to last week, yearling feeder cattle prices were not well tested as supplies have been exhausted. Auction receipts were large but calves dominated the offerings at most salebarns, and there were very few direct sales of current delivery yearlings. However, prices on those available were mostly firm to 3.00 higher with some Midwestern auctions reporting sharply higher prices paid by farmer-feeders that have their corn harvested and ready to feed. The 350 head of Number 1 700-800 lb yearlings in Green City, Missouri brought 116.50-119.75 on Wednesday. Most of this week's trading was on calves which sold 2.00-7.00 higher with the best demand for either heavy- weaned calves that can be placed on feed or thin lightweights that are suitable for early wheat pasture. Last weeks widespread moisture across the Plains sparked winter wheat fields and horizons are turning bright green from eastern New Mexico to eastern Kansas.

The fed cattle market started the week by posting an unbelievable 120.00 cash live basis in the Northern feedlot area and continuing to maintain limit up Live Cattle Futures. Who would have of known that this would be the week that we answered the oft asked question, How high can it go? On Wednesday, the Chicago Mercantile Exchange raised the daily limit move on live cattle contracts to accommodate the quickly rising fat cattle market. Limited market-ready supplies have been compounded by cattle feeders who have been unable to sell their fats, because they couldnt get out of their hedge. When October contracts lost steam short of the new 5 00 limit on Wednesdays open, this was seen as a bearish sign and out-front months on both live and feeder cattle futures plummeted. The packers that were begging to buy cattle at record prices on Tuesday stepped out of the market and pulled their bids only a day later. Spot October live contracts settled at 99.35 Friday afternoon, after selling over 200,000 head this week with a weighted average of nearly 109.00.

The feedlot-fun at the expense of the packers seems to be over for now, but the fact that we are out of finished cattle remains and Choice cut-outs broke the 2 00 ceiling this week. Many un-hedged closeouts profited as much as 400.00 per head, but if these guys have been in the business over the last few years chances are they need it

EDITOR'S NOTE: Due to changes in milk supply agreements, milk import/export totals are not directly comparable to year ago figures and to shipments prior to April 1, 2003.

During September, milk production in the 20 major states totaled 11.64 billion pounds, down 0.1% from September 2002. The following are the September-to- September changes for selected states: Texas 7 .5%, Vermont -1.9%, New York - 2.6%, Florida -8.4%, Pennsylvania -6.5%, Kentucky -10.1% and Virginia -11.6%.

This week, milk production is reported as mixed. In the Southeast, milk output is mostly steady. Some slight increases were noted in Florida, the Carolinas, and other Mid-Atlantic states. A few decreases in the milk flow were reported in the more western sections of the Southeast. Milk production in the Northeast is steady to lighter. The ban on live cows/calves coming in from Canada has had an impact on dairy farmers throughout the region, but more notably in New York and New England where cow sales across the border have been commonplace for years and years. Also, the CWT program bid acceptances have seen some herds being retired and this is having a negative impact on milk production. Class I demand is holding at fair to good levels. The strike/lockout at several retail chains is in its third week, but seems to be having less of an influence on retail sales than it did in its first week. Stores not affected by the strike are seeing improved sales of bottled milk and other dairy products. The need for milk in Florida remains relatively high, but the need for "imported" milk in other Southeastern states has eased. Surplus milk supplies are tight and manufacturing plant schedules, particularly cheese, are down accordingly. The good demand for both butter and NDM is currently attracting more milk to Class IV plants.

The condensed skim market is steady. Class II sales are steady, but there are no spot sales of Class III being reported. Prices for Class II are unchanged, but Class III prices, though nominal, have moved higher.

The fluid cream market is not as weak as it was last week, but contacts report no difficulty finding any spot loads they may need. Less excess cream is moving out of the region for churning. Spot prices are steady to lower as multiples have eased at more locations. Demand is holding up quite well, particularly from cream cheese makers and some ice cream producers. Production of some seasonal products like egg nog, bottled and whipping cream are expected to pick up in the next week or two. Local butter makers are producing at light to moderate levels.

bring the kind of prices they've been the last few weeks.

"It puts everything out of perspective," Brown said of the record price spike.

A lot of unfinished cattle are going to auction as producers sell their lighter stock in order to take advantage of the market, according to Brown, who buys cattle for several packers.

Brown said he is worried about cattle numbers dropping across the country because of the selling spree. Another factor that could contribute to a cattle deficit is the feed shortage earlier this year, which prompted producers to sell earlier.

Even so, Brown doesn't expect prices to remain over $100 per CWT indefinitely.

More likely, he said, the market will settle down into the $90 range in coming months.

Because of the record live market prices, packers have had to buy cattle at costs above their contracted sale price with retail buyers. In turn, packers have raised prices. The result will be higher-priced beef in the grocery store.

Homer Eberly of Stevens has been in the beef business since 1981 and finishes about 450 head of beef a year.

"I've never seen anything like it before," Eberly said of the recent prices.

One of the reasons for the high market is that beef producers have been selling unfinished cattle, which means less beef on the market, Eberly said.

"The feed wasn't there and the price was good, so they sold," he said.

Eberly, who buys feeder cattle locally, is not too concerned about being able to find feeders to fill the barn.

"I think they will be available," he said, noting "we'll have to pay for them."

Eberly expects finished cattle prices to hold in the $90 range until February 2004, when "new crop" cattle will increase supplies again.

The price of beef in the store will eventually have an effect on the market, Eberly predicted.

"(Beef prices) in the store haven't changed a lot yet, but they will," he said.

John Welsh, meat manager at Stauffer's of Kissel Hill, Lititz, said this week he received a list of retail price changes from the company's meat buyer, noting increases for beef products.

"I'm hoping it's just short term," Welsh said.

PDA, PDE Launch Ag Website Tool For Classrooms

Agriculture Secretary Dennis C. Wolff, Education Secretary Vicki Phillips, and Manheim Township sixth grader Alexandra Wenger were present during the ceremonies in Harrisburg.

Gov. Ed Rendell, who was not able to attend because of a scheduling conflict, commented on the site.

"If Pennsylvania is to continue to be an agricultural leader, we must begin to be an educational leader as well. The departments of education and agriculture worked together to make this project a reality to meet a demonstrated need for high quality information about agriculture, particularly Pennsylvania agriculture," Rendell said. "This innovative project will help our teachers as they highlight the importance of agriculture both as a driving economic force in the commonwealth and as a rich part of our heritage."

The site will provide teachers in Pennsylvania with convenient access to agricultural educational materials aligned to Pennsylvania teaching standards for use in their classrooms. The site will also provide students, the general public, agricultural community, and government officials with up-to-date agricultural educational resources, event listings, and useful information to enhance their understanding and appreciation of Pennsylvania agriculture.

Amber Frank and Laura Grove, state FFA officers, try out the new PDA/PDE Website Monday in Harrisburg.

The PDA noted Pennsylvania is the only state in the national with a Website of this type.

The Website will provide the agricultural community access to details on low-interest loans, technical information, and industry programming. The general public will benefit from up-to-date agricultural information, event listings, and agricultural issues.

Md. Governor Honors Century Farm Families

ANNAPOLIS, Md. — Maryland Gov. Robert L. Ehrlich Jr. recently honored Maryland's farm families for their commitment to farming and leadership in preserving agricultural land by presenting Century Farm designations to eight families who have farmed the same land for more than 100 years.

Since the program began in 1994, 120 farms — less than one percent of the state's 12,200 farms — have received the Century Farm designation.

"Maryland's farmers are the backbone of our economy," said Ehrlich. "The Century Farm families we honor today have played a significant role in making agriculture the leading industry in Maryland. I am committed to working with the entire farm community to maintain viable food and fiber industries for Maryland's future."

The oldest farm honored today was the 280-acre farm established in 1834 in Washington County by ancestors of Berman Lee Hixon, the current owner. The 158-year-old farm produces corn, grain and a variety of livestock.

Other farms honored today with the "Century Farm" designation are:

• Fowling Creek Farm, Caroline County — 52-acre multiple crop, grain and poultry farm, established in 1902 and owned by Ronnie, Herman, Kathleen, and Ruth Steenken.

• Woodland Hall Farm, Kent County — 220-acre multiple crop, poultry, and livestock farm established in 1860 and owned Mary Woodland Gould Tan, Margaret Ann Gould Cummings, and Edmon Sindal Hurtt Gould. The farm has established waterways and a pond for

Champions Top Both Open And 4-H Blue Valley Dairy Shows

DEANNA CUNFER
Carbon Co. Correspondent

BANGOR (Northampton Co.) — The Open and 4-H dairy shows were recently conducted during the Blue Valley Farm Show, Bangor. The comment usually heard at livestock shows about "a different day and different judge gives different results" didn't quite hold true for the open and 4-H competitions this year. The 4-H Jersey and Holstein shows are scheduled for the morning after the Open Jersey and Holstein shows with each day having their own judge. It was obvious that quality shines through as the same animals were selected as senior and grand champions on both days.

Rick Hess, Lancaster County, judged the Open dairy show. Working in agribusiness for Hess Mills — Purina he is a graduate of Penn State University where he majored in dairy science.

Starting with the Jersey show Hess selected the spring calf entry of Krissa Brewer, the March 2003 Bryncoed Hadyn Humphrey, as the junior champion. Hess described the daughter of DJF Berretta Hadyn as being very upstanding with good spring of fore rib and top. Brewer, 10, is the daughter of Jeff and Tammy Brewer of Brewer Farms, Bangor, and is in the fifth grade at DeFranco Elementary School.

Stacy Brewer than saw her Feb. 2003 winner of the winter calf class tapped for the junior reserve champion rosette. Brew-Line Mor Pepsi, a daughter of Wilsonview Khan Morgan — ET was described as having good substance of bone by Hess. Stacy, 10-year-old daughter of Kevin and Lori Brewer of Brewer Farms, Bangor, is in the fifth grade at DeFranco Elementary School.

Stacy then topped the senior division of the Open Jersey show with her Dec. 1999 KL Topkick Precious, a daughter of AV Lester Topkick — ET. Hess described the senior and grand champion as being an upstanding individual with a desirable mammary system.

Reserve senior and reserve grand champion Open Jersey honors went to Brittany Brewer's March 2000 KL Shane Bitzy, daughter of Schultz Lester Shane. Brittany, 7, is the daughter of Jeff and Tammy Brewer, Bangor, and in the second grade at Washington Elementary School.

The reserve junior champion rosette went to Krissa Brewer's March 2003 Brew-Line Eland Rene from the same class describing the reserve grand champion as being very stylish.

Moving into the senior division Hess selected the tall upstanding 3-year-old of Stephanie Brewer, 12. Brew-Line Bestow Jangle, Dec. 1999 daughter of Merit Bestow — ET, then moved on to capture the grand champion Holstein rosette for Brewer. Stephanie is the daughter of Kevin and Lori Brewer, Bangor, and in the seventh grade at Bangor Middle School.

Reserve senior and reserve grand champion Holstein honors went to Brittany Brewer's 4-year-old, Just-Mi-Style Patron Sugar. The May 1999 daughter of Brabant Star Patron — ET was described by Hess as being a flashy cow with lots of dairyness over the top.

Supreme female honors of the Open dairy show went to Stephanie Brewer's champion Holstein with the reserve supreme rosette going to the Jersey champion of Stacy Brewer.

The next morning Warren Buckman, Bucks County dairyman, breeder, and showman judged the 4-H dairy show.

Stacy Brewer exhibited the junior champion of the Jersey show, Brew-Line Cosmo Princess. The Jan. 2002 winter yearling, a daughter of Barbs MBSB Cosmo — ET, was described by Buckman as being long, tall, and having plenty of strength throughout.

Reserve junior honors went to the April 2002 spring yearling of Dakoda Finken, 12-year-old son of Melissa Finken of Finken Farms near Pen Argyl. Finken is in the seventh grade at Wind Gap Middle School. The reserve junior champion, Brycoed Richey Jersey, is a daughter of Twin Haven Montana Richey — ET.

Repeating her success from last night's open dairy show senior Jersey and grand champion honors went to Stacy Brewer's KL Topkick Precious, a daughter of AV Lester Topkick — ET. Buckman describe this Dec. 1999 cow as being a handy winner that was obviously milking well and doing her part producing for the herd.

Stephanie Brewer then walked her June 2001 daughter of Molly Brook Berretta Flyer — ET, Brew-Line Berretta Diamond, into the reserve senior and reserve grand champion spot.

Buckman then reviewed the Holstein entries of the 4-H dairy show selecting the Dec. 2002 winter calf of Laura Kromer as his junior champion. Afton-Springs Webster Judy, daughter of Delta Webster — ET, was described as being long with plenty of body, being very correct in the rump with a correct set of legs and feet.

Reserve junior honors went to Brew-Line Grandslam Snowflak, a Nov. 2001 daughter of J-L-G Grandslam — ET, exhibited by Krissa Brewer and described by the judge as being a real nice heifer with lots of size and strength and having beautiful udder promise.

Also repeating her success from the previous evening's Open dairy show Stephanie Brewer's Dec. 1999 Brew-Line Bestow Jangle then captured the senior and grand champion Holstein honors of the 4-H dairy show. A daughter of Merit Bestow — ET Brewer's champion was described by Buckman as having more balance and strength in her front end with plenty of depth of rib.

Reserve senior and reserve grand champion honors went to Stacy Brewer's Oct. 2000 Scottian Cels Flair, a daughter of Etazon Celsius — ET. Buckman said anyone that milks must appreciate this cow feeling it was hard to beat the udder on this oustanding 2-year-old.

Earlier in the 4-H competition Buckman selected Stacy Brewer as his champion fitter from the intermediate class with Stephanie Brewer, winner of the senior division earning the reserve fitter award.

Stephanie then received the reserve showman award with Krissa Brewer from the junior division being selected as Buckman's choice for champion showman honors.

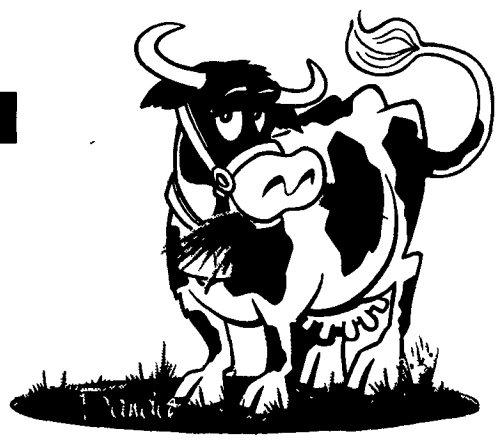
Here's A Real Bargain on Top Notch Alfalfa Seed

10% Discount *Until Oct. 31



Baralfa 421Q Looks Good After This Year's Wet Weather

Proven varieties at a GREAT price!

BARALFA 321Q - Increased Quality
One of the highest forage quality varieties anywhere. Fine stems, large leaves - well proven, widely adapted.
29/30 Disease Resistance

BARALFA 54
A high yielder for southern Pennsylvania and Maryland. Many customers still prefer 54. It yields very well and is priced right.

Super Disease Resistant Varieties

BARALFA 421Q - Increased Quality
In the last 2 yrs. we have had more good comments on its performance than any other variety. Very strong dense crown and great root system. Tolerates earlier cuts, moist soils, and traffic better than most varieties.
30/30 Disease Resistance

BARALFA 63HR
Very impressive yielder with great disease resistance and fast regrowth. 109% of mean at 1998 Rock Springs trial (average of 3 years' data and still looking strong)!
30/30 Disease Resistance
4.8 Fall Dormancy
2.5 Winter Hardiness

BARENBRUG

Ideas To Decorate Your Home For Fall

LOU ANN GOOD
Food And Family
Features Editor

LITITZ (Lancaster Co.) — Bring fall's beauty into your home to warm the chill of autumn's weather.

Seeded wheat, leaves in yellows, golds, and red, and mounds of mini pumpkins and gourds in all sizes and shapes provide glorious items to incorporate into indoor decor.

Recently Tina Umbrell Sauder demonstrated how easy it is to decorate your home for fall. Readers may remember Tina as a former 4-H'er who won numerous grand championships at local fairs for showing swine. Now she is grown up and a designer for Esbenshade's Garden Center, Lititz, where she taught a recent class.

"Your coffee table is your artist canvas," Tina said. She suggests combining textures and colors to make a design that reflects your individuality.

Some of Tina's tabletop ideas including decorating a mini-evergreen tree with miniature pumpkins and tree lights. Insert inside a wreath decorated in fall colors.

She recommends dipping wooden picks into oil of cloves before inserting into miniature gourds or pumpkins to keep them from from premature rotting.

Tina considers a large glass vase as a staple to use in table decor. Fill the glass vase with tall grasses or shove a berry garland inside the vase and place a fall arrangement on top. Or fill the glass vase with colorful balls or mini-pumpkins.

To make a basket centerpiece, place floral foam to extend three-quarters of an inch above rim of the basket. Insert groupings of wheat, cattails, grasses, pumpkin vines, and grapes to cover foam and in a pleasing height.

For a table centerpiece, fill a large bowl with fruit or mix apples, pears, gourds, and miniature pumpkins in a bowl or basket.

If you are having dinner guests, create unique name cards for each table setting. Make a slit in mini pumpkins and insert card with the name of guest.

Although most brands of hot glue do not hold well in flunctuating outdoor temperatures, Tina said that Esbenshades sells a brand called Hot Melt Hand Glue that is a higher grade of hot glue and holds well outdoors and in.

To see more of Tina's designs and ideas to inspire you, visit Esbenshade's Garden Center's home decor and design department. For more information, call the Adamstown site at (717) 445-6055 or the Brickerville site at (717) 626-7007.

Tina Umbrell Sauder combines a variety of textures and colors for fall decor. She holds a buffet centerpiece made by gluing together clay flowerpots topped with a fall flower arrangement.

Insert a colorful orange glass ball inside a candle ring bursting with fall's bounty. Simply change the color of the ball to red for Christmas holidays.

On Being a Farm Wife

Joyce Bupp

Jagged rows of beige stripes accent the new green, cornstalk residual weaving faint row markings through the grassy cover. The forage harvester's motor was till warm from chopping the corn for silage when The Farmer sent a tractor and drill poking oats seed across the hill into the denuded soil.

His goal is to have all fields cover-cropped through the winter, to minimize erosion and boost organic matter to fatten our valuable, hardworking earthworms. In a burst of lucky timing, the drill made its last passes just as another moisture-maker storm was shoving its first dark clouds our way.

With Mother Nature so promptly hoisting her sprinkling can over the seeding, green shots popped through the ground about as quickly as the sun popped over the horizon in a few days. Tiny lines of green soon wound around the hill, pushing out side shoots of tender, grassy blades to fill in between the rows.

And all the neighborhood critters began showing up to feast.

A small family of resident deer hung out all summer in the alfalfa and cornfields. While the corn was standing, it offered ample cover for hiding in between their alfalfa-munching sessions. One the tall stalks were chopped, though, the does and their fawns headed for he woods. The tender, tasty oats tempted them out of hiding and gave us much closer glimpses of this year's families.

Of course, the usual parade of groundhogs, rabbits and squirrels, dwellers of the fencerows and the woodlot, nabbed the opportunity to dine on fresh feastings as well. Then the aerial troops began to flock in.

This invitation began small, just a few of our matured Canada goose hatchlings returning for a visit. After learning to fly, they had disappeared to join larger area flocks. New oats growth brought more than our few winging back, apparently they invited every distant relative anywhere nearby to join the party.

Their timing was fascinating, since the invasion of literally several hundred feathered friends descended on the field of freshly sprouted oats about two days after the early goose-hunting season closed. It's probably safe to assume that the couple of acres they dined on from sunrise to sunset is probably even better fertilized than neighboring parts of that field. Feed for fertilizer was probably a reasonable trade.

Seeding a cover crop in the fields by the house has a dual purpose, not only to protect and enrich the soil, but also to provide our "girls" with healthy fall grazing. Last year's drought and short crops left us seriously short of quality feed throught the summer. So, as quickly as the weather permitted, temporary fence went up, and we swung open the gates.

Turning cows out into the pasture for the first time each season is a heart-warming sight. But it's best to watch from a distance. Our older cows seem to remember field-pasturing from year to year. They'll practically stampede right over you for the fresh grass.

The first several minutes of this exercise are never about eating. Instead, the whole group will run, trot, kick up their heels-dance! - as they race toward the top of the hill. Heads in the air, tails trailing behind, udders of the older ones swaying as they run, their behavior suggests kindergartners excused to the playground. With acres of edible-playground to choose from, they split off in clusters, heading for various corners to explore.

Eventually, after getting the recess mode out of their systems, the girls settle down to business. Heads get buried in the grass, muzzles busy munching. Black and white cows grazing on green grass with a blue sky overhead is absolutely one of by favorite scenes.

Their presence wasn't quite as thrilling to another group.

A day or two after we began grazing the hillside, several flocks of geese, flew over one morning, honking loudly. Headed north? Minutes later, several flocks of geese flew over, headed south. Honking even more loudly. Then we realized it was our feathered moochers, highly upset over losing their feeding area to the new "flock" that was munching their grass. And they haven't been back.

Get cows.

Ranck's Ag Perspective Broadens After Working On Farms In Brazil, Tanzania, Kenya, Portugal, Poland, Moldavia

LOU ANN GOOD
Food And Family Features Editor

PARADISE (Lancaster Co.) — Aaron Ranck recently returned to his family's Lancaster County dairy farm. After traveling the world, and working in agriculture in several different countries, his viewpoint is much broader than Lancaster County agriculture.

Lancaster Farming in the Aug. 3, 2002 issue reported that Ranck was one of 60 outstanding college graduates nationwide to receive a prestigious $22,000 Watson Fellowship to finance a project of his choice.

"I drew on my ag roots and wanted to expand my ag horizons," Ranck, 23, said of his decision to work on farms in Brazil, Tanzania, Kenya, Portugal, Poland, and Moldavia.

Back home on his parents' — Don and Ginny Ranck's — dairy farm, Ranck recently joined the farm's bed and breakfast guests for a meal. The breakfast included whole wheat, white, and zuchinni breads, veal sausage, eggs, peach cobbler with peach yogurt, and apple crisp. The traditional breakfast brought back memories of more unusual fare that he had recently eaten. Zebra and whale were some of the more exotic tastes he remembers.

He traveled independently and was responsible for mapping out his own transportation and time schedule. He slept eight hours on buses some nights and learned to navigate his way around countries by reading maps.

In Brazil, Ranck worked on a 1,700-acre dairy farm where he helped milk 200 Holsteins.

"Brazil is a well-developed agriculture country. This year, they will bypass our country in soybean production," Ranck said.

Although the land where he worked looked similar to Lancaster County, the social inequality of the area was evident. The urban poor and the rural poor contrasted sharply to the small percentage of the very rich.

After viewing various governments and economies, and how it impacts the people, Ranck said, "There is no other way than capitalism."

He said, "In Brazil, the price of milk is about half of ours, but farmers' feed and labor costs are also half as much as ours (the U.S.) Land is much cheaper, but machinery costs are much higher," Ranck said. The farm owners are alarmed by the rising land costs.

"Inflation and recession can be good for farmers," Ranck said. Farmers who buy inputs in the beginning may see inflation rise, which causes labor costs to go down, and results in selling high at the end of the year.

Working on a Northeast Brazil plantation, Ranck saw sugarcane as far as his eyes could see.

People in the rural areas were curious and friendly, happy to talk and learn about American ways from Ranck.

He ability to communicate in Portuguese and Arabic or Hebrew benefited him in his travels.

His plans had been to spend at least two months in Jordan, but the Iraqi War changed that. Instead, he substituted Poland and Moldavia.

Ranck said his experiences broke down stereotypes. "I absolutely loved every place I was. It was neat to see communities and how people lived."

As a visitor, Ranck said that his focus was not to judge. For example, his Tanzanian host had two wives. Although that is acceptable in that country, the community also had their own criteria of what is considered respectable.

Men were expected to be able to support all their children. The villagers often talked about a "foolish rich man" in the community who had 100 cows, 100 goats, and 100 sheep. He also had several sons who partied and drank. The sons would steal a cow from their dad to pay for their partying, but their dad did not do anything to stop the crime. Hence his neighbors considered him foolish.

Villagers in Africa were worried about potential famine after a bad growing year. Ranck observed that the government is disconnected and has little impact on rural communities.

The weekly market was the soul of the community. Ranck lived in an area that was so remote it had no electricity, telephone, or mail service, so he purchased a bike to ride 17 miles to mail a letter to his mother.

Tanzania is a socialist country, where individuals cannot own land. Wealth is measured by how many cows you have. There is not enough money to even think of using insecticides, and no commercial agriculture.

Ranck would like to forge a career in a foreign service such as serving as a diplomat to another country. While working on his parents' farm, Ranck is applying for government internships in Washington D.C. and to graduate schools to study international relations.

Ranck would like to represent foreign policy not only in agriculture but work his way up to ambassadorship or to a higher level, which requires about 20 years of rising through the ranks. Ambassadors generally have no choice in the country they are sent, Ranck said. He would prefer the Middle East. He is interested in the conflicts and how the United States interacts with these countries.

Ranck was in Portugal when the War in Iraq started.

"It was shocking watching the war coverage. I was in Portugal, having a wonderful experience, and people my age were dying every day."

Of the Iraqi War, Ranck said, "It was an enormous undertaking, and I hope it turns out for the better of all involved. It's too early to be pessimistic and throw in the towel."

Ranck reads about 10 books monthly on agriculture policy in Western Europe.

"Without understanding the past, we can't understand today or the future. The future is not something we passively accept, it is something we should create," Ranck said.

Of Poland, Ukraine, and Modavia, Ranck said each faces unique and challenging situations. These countries faced extremes in shifting from a socialist to capitalist economy, and can teach us a valuable lesson: how constant change is, which we don't notice if we aren't paying attention. We are either following or left behind."

In Lancaster County, Ranck said that his parents have income from their bed and breakfast operation, so they don't need to have as large a dairy operation as many other countians do. The Rancks milk 30 cows on their fourth generation 118-acre farm. They also own an adjacent house used for bed-and-breakfast guests. The Rancks follow rotational grazing practices using seven paddocks on 10 acres.

"Lancaster County has good soil, a good location, and can continue to be competitive, but the constant challenge is to never sit back and be satisfied, but continue to compete to produce a better product at a lower price."

"I love it here (the farm), but will leave it behind. I want to help build an international community," he said.

"It's somewhat difficult to leave the farm, but I've spent my time preparing a career in international interests, not in management and business skills needed to farm here."

While working in other countries, Ranck did not teach, but observed for independent research.

The Watson Fellowship was established in 1968 by the children of IBM founder Thomas J. Watson Sr. and his wife Jeannette to honor their parent's longstanding interest in education and world affairs. The program identifies prospective leaders and allows them to develop their independence and become world citizens.

Many of the former recipients went on to become diplomats, doctors, researchers, professors, college presidents, and chief executive officers for major corporations.

Although Ranck's future isn't clearly mapped out, he said, "I have the advantage of growing up on a farm and knowing how it works. I understand how cooperatives differ from corporations. My dad is on the zoning board and has been active in community affairs and politics to help shape community opinion."

Ranck considers his farm background a great asset, regardless of his career path. He said, "Living on a farm also taught me the need to be flexible and to multi-task."

After spending a year working on farms in Brazil, Tanzania, Kenya, Portugal, Poland, and Moldavia, Ranck takes a break on the family's dairy farm to talk about his experiences.

Aaron grew up with lots of exposure to other cultures through mingling with guests at his parents' Verdant View Farm Bed and Breakfast, Paradise. His parents, Don and Ginny, are on the right.

Well Preserved

Apple Trivia

Here is some apple trivia from the University of Illinois Cooperative Extension. Two pounds of apples make one 9-inch pie. A peck of apples weighs 10.5 pounds. A bushel of apples will yield 20 to 24 quarts of applesauce.

More than 60 percent of apples in the United States are eaten as fresh fruit. Apple varieties range in size from a little larger than a cherry to as large as a grapefruit. Twenty-five percent of an apple's volume is air which explains why they float. It is also why apples need to be blanched for hot packing and for canning pie filling.

Most of the apple's fragrance cells are concentrated in the skin; and as they ripen, the skin cells develop more aroma and flavor.

"Under color" is a clue to the ripeness of the apple. It changes from green to yellow or greenish-yellow as the apple matures. In red varieties it can be seen around the core or stem cavities. When picking your own apples, you should be able to roll or twist the apple so its stem separates from the tree leaving the stem attached to the apple.

Why does it seem that if you find one spoiled apple, you are likely to find others? As they ripen apples produce a natural hormone called ethylene. This causes other fruit near it to begin ripening. Damaged or diseased apples produce a lot of ethylene which causes other apples to ripen too quickly. As they ripen, the apples become more susceptible to disease and spoilage.

Ethylene producers should not be stored with fruits, vegetables, or flowers that are sensitive to it. Thus apples and other ethylene producers should not be stored near lettuce, snap beans, turnips, asparagus, carrots, parsnips, broccoli, cabbage, Chinese cabbage, cauliflower, cucumbers, summer squash, acorn squash, watermelons, eggplant, sweet potatoes, potatoes, or raspberries and blackberries.

New apple varieties keep appearing at orchard stands. Each variety has its unique characteristics making some more suitable for eating fresh; others hold their shape well for baking, and still others are favored for sauce. Some varieties maintain their quality better in storage.

Apples ripen six to ten times faster at room temperature than in the refrigerator. For longer storage, keep apples in a cool place or in the refrigerator. Braeburn, Northern Spry, Winesap, and York varieties can be stored up to six months with refrigeration. Cortland, Empire, Fuji, Golden Delicious, Granny Smith, Mutsu, McIntosh, and Red Delicious and Rome can be refrigerated for three to six months. Gala keeps two to three months. Apples that can only be kept a few weeks are Lodi and Summer Rambo.

Multi-purpose apples such as Golden Delicious, Stayman/Winesap, Fuji, and Granny Smith are suitable for eating fresh and for use in cooking and baking. Rome is excellent for pies, sauce, and baked.

Good pie apples include Ginger Gold, Courtland, Golden Delicious, Jonagold, Idared, Pink Lady, Mitsu, York, Stayman, Braeburn, Fuji, and Granny Smith. Red Delicious and Gala are best used fresh.

Some apples oxidize quickly when cut surfaces are exposed to air. Prevent browning by dipping the cut apples in an ascorbic acid solution or use a commercial ascorbic acid mixture. When canning, freezing, or drying apples, leave the cut apples soak in an ascorbic acid solution while preparing the remaining fruit.

There's a lot of good nutrition packed into an apple. A medium apple contains about 80 calories. An apple contains both soluble and insoluble fiber. Pectin, an insoluble fiber, is also the substance that causes jellies to jell. They contain small amounts of calcium, phosphorus, iron, potassium, folate, vitamins A and C. Cornell University research has shown that the flavonoids and polyphenols, (phytochemicals,) found in the flesh and skin of apples provide anti-oxidant and health benefits. Apples do not contain fat, sodium, or cholesterol.

If you have food preservation questions, a home economist is available to answer questions on Wednesdays 10:00 a.m.1:00 p.m., call (717) 394-6851 or write Penn State Cooperative Extension, Lancaster County, 1383 Arcadia Rd., Rm.1, Lancaster, PA, 17601.

Don't Squash Pumpkin Indulgences

This year, bright orange colorful roadside displays of pumpkins often include mounds of green, purple, red and striped varieties in all sizes and unique shapes.

In the past, neck pumpkins, butternut, and Hubbard squashes were considered reliable for tasty pumpkin dishes. But more and more varieties are being added.

Pumpkin and squash can be cooked in a variety of ways. One of the easiest, is to split the pumpkin or squash, turn it upside down in a shallow baking dish with a little water and bake or microwave until tender. Discard seeds and stringy flesh. Scoop out the cooked flesh and mash or put into the blender until smooth.

STREUSEL-TOPPED PUMPKIN PIE

15-ounce can pumpkin
14-ounce can sweetened condensed milk (NOT evaporated)
1 egg
1¼ teaspoon ground cinnamon
½ teaspoon ginger
½ teaspoon nutmeg
½ teaspoon salt
1 graham cracker pie crust
¼ cup firmly packed brown sugar
2 tablespoons flour
2 tablespoons cold butter
¾ cup chopped walnuts

Preheat oven to 425 degrees. With mixer or wire whisk, beat pumpkin, sweetened condensed milk, egg, ¾ teaspoon cinnamon, ginger, nutmeg, and salt. Pour into crust.

Bake 15 minutes.

Meanwhile, combine sugar, flour, and remaining ½ teaspoon cinnamon; cut in butter until crumbly. Stir in walnuts. Remove crust from oven; reduce heat to 350 degrees. Sprinkle streusel mixture over pie.

Bake 40 minutes or until set. Cool. Serve warm at room temperature. Refrigerate leftovers.

PUMPKIN DESSERT

1½ teaspoons cinnamon
¼ teaspoon ground cloves
¼ teaspoon ground nutmeg
1½ cups sugar
4 tablespoons flour
4 eggs
4 cups pureed cooked pumpkin
3 cups milk

Topping:
18¼-ounce box yellow cake mix
½ cup butter, melted

In a bowl, beat the first six ingredients. Add pumpkin and milk; mix well. Pour into a greased 9x13-inch pan. Sprinkle cake mix evenly over top. Drizzle with butter. Bake at 350 degrees for 45-50 minutes or until set.

Delicious served with ice cream.

FROSTED PUMPKIN CAKE

1 cup sugar
2 large eggs
1 cup pumpkin
½ cup vegetable oil
1 cup flour
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1 teaspoon baking soda
½ teaspoon baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
¾ cup confectioners' sugar
¼ cup cream cheese
2 tablespoons butter, softened
½ teaspoon vanilla

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Grease 9-inch square pan.

In bowl with mixer, beat sugar and eggs. Beat in pumpkin and oil. Add flour, cinnamon, baking soda, baking powder, and salt.

Pour batter into prepared pan. Bake 25-30 minutes until toothpick inserted in center comes out clean. Cool.

Prepare icing. In bowl with mixer, beat together confectioners' sugar and remaining ingredients until fluffy. Ice cake.

SPAGHETTI SQUASH GRATIN WITH TOMATO, BASIL, PARMESAN

1 spaghetti squash
2 tablespoons vegetable oil
2 medium onions, diced
1 clove garlic, minced
1 cup tomato, peeled, seeded, diced
1½ cups Parmesan cheese, shredded
½ cup bread crumbs, dried
¼ cup basil, chopped
Salt, to taste
White pepper, to taste
1 egg, beaten

Preheat oven to 400 degrees. Halve squash, scoop out seeds and place cut side down in a pan large enough to hold the squash. Add ¼-inch water to pan, rub skin with oil and roast until all the flesh is tender and can easily be scraped into thin, spaghetti-like strands using a fork. Place strands in a mixing bowl and discard skin. Set bowl aside. In a large, non-stick pan, in 1 tablespoon vegetable oil, carefully caramelize the onion until browned with a sweet aroma. Add garlic and cook briefly.

Add diced tomato and heat through. Fold onion mixture into squash along with basil and 1 cup cheese. Season to taste with salt and pepper.

Fold in beaten egg. Heat remaining oil in the non-stick pan. Pour squash back into the non-stick pan and press with a spatula to create a dense even layer. Cook on the stove, over medium high heat, until the bottom is beginning to brown. Place in oven and bake until the bottom has developed a crisp crust. Remove the pan from the oven and using a plate to invert the mixture, carefully flip the squash in one piece and slide into the pan.

Mix the remaining cheese with the bread crumbs and sprinkle mixture over the top of the squash. Place back into the oven and bake until the bottom is crisp and the cheese-breadcrumb mixture is browned. Remove from the oven, unmold onto a cutting board, and cut into eight even wedges.

BLUE HUBBARD BISQUE

4 cups Blue Hubbard squash, cooked
1 Spanish onion, diced
1 sprig thyme, fresh
2 cloves garlic, slivered
1 quart rich veal stock
⅛ teaspoon ground cinnamon
1 pinch ground nutmeg
⅛ teaspoon ground ginger
1 tablespoon honey
1 cup heavy cream
1 tablespoon salt
1 teaspoon white pepper

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Halve squash, scoop out seeds and place cut-side down in a pan large enough to hold the squash. Add ¼-inch water to pan, rub skin with olive oil and roast at 350 degrees until flesh of squash is tender. Cool slightly, then scoop out the flesh and set aside.

In a heavy bottomed pot, over low heat, in the olive oil, slowly heat the onion and garlic until soft and translucent. Add the spices. Add thyme and squash and cook a few minutes over low heat to marry flavors and caramelize slightly. Add veal stock and honey, carefully bring to a boil. Reduce heat to simmer. Cook 10 minutes, stirring often so as not to burn. Remove from heat. In a food processor or blender, only filling halfway at a time, carefully puree soup in batches until smooth. Once all the soup is pureed, pour the contents back in the pot, return to the heat and add cream. Bring the soup back to a simmer. Adjust seasonings with salt, pepper, and more spice if needed. Garnish with a dollop of unsweetened whipped cream flavored with the same spices as above and an orange-herb gremolata made from a mixture of chopped orange zest, fresh chives, and toasted pumpkin seeds.

Cake:
Powdered sugar
¾ cup all-purpose flour
½ teaspoon baking powder
½ teaspoon baking soda
½ teaspoon ground cinnamon
½ teaspoon ground cloves
¼ teaspoon salt
3 large eggs
1 cup granulated sugar
⅔ cup Libby's 100 percent pure pumpkin
1 cup chopped walnuts (optional)

Filling:
8-ounces cream cheese, softened
1 cup sifted powdered sugar
6 tablespoons butter, softened
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
Powdered sugar

Preheat oven to 375 degrees. Grease 15x10-inch jelly roll pan, line with wax paper. Grease and flour paper. Sprinkle towel with powdered sugar; set aside.

Combine flour, baking powder, baking soda, cinnamon, cloves, and salt in a small bowl. Beat eggs and sugar in a large bowl until thick. Beat in pumpkin. Stir in flour mixture. Spread evenly into prepared pan. Sprinkle with nuts.

Bake 13-15 minutes or until top of cake springs back when needed. Immediately loosen and cake onto towel. Carefully peel off paper. Roll up cake and towel together, starting with narrow end. Cool on wire rack.

Beat cream cheese, powdered sugar, butter, and vanilla in small bowl until smooth. Carefully unroll cake, remove towel. Spread cream cheese mixture over cake. Reroll cake. Wrap in plastic wrap; refrigerate at least one hour. Sprinkle with powdered sugar before serving. Makes 10 servings.

Family Stress

Is it sometimes difficult to get the youngster to cooperate with you in getting into the car and then into their car-seat for the trip home? Here's some food for thought about how to defuse this stress provoking situation. Cars seats and the need to obey child safety laws may be part of the 21st Century, but the parent/child power struggle behind the issue has been around for ages. Think of the acronym C-A-R. It will remind you of three key words Change, Activity, and Resistance.

Children need help making transitions. When you want them to leave the caregiver and peaceably enter the car, this is a change and most children resist change. They are not skilled at envisioning the future and you can make the transition easier by helping them visualize the steps that are involved.

Use words and questions to help draw them out. Do not tell the child what is doing to happen, what has to be done and how to do it. Take the time to talk through the activity by asking the child questions. This will take a little bit of time, but it will be much easier than listening to the youngster howl for the entire drive home after you have forcibly belted or buckled him/her into the car seat.

After greeting the child at the daycare location, ask the child what happens next. The youngster will probably respond with something like "you give me a hug and then we look at my art work", and maybe he'll say he doesn't want to leave yet.

Acknowledge that he enjoys being at daycare and would like to stay, but continue asking questions about what else needs to happen. Prompt the child if necessary, "What happens when we go outside? What do we do?"

"We get in our car." Ask him what happens when he gets in the car.

Eventually the child should be able to say that he needs to get into his car seat and get buckled up.

Talk the child through the whole process, step by step, helping the child create a picture of it in their mind. Remember, you are doing all of this while you are still inside the caregiver's home or facility. The process of visualizing the transition eliminates 75 to 80 percent of the battles and takes only a few minutes. Some of the most positive disciple in preventive discipline.

Some children might even need more than words to imagine the setting. Help them by drawing stick figures showing "This is Billy going to the car" "This is Billy buckled into his car-seat" "This is Billy and Mommy riding home".

Activity is the second keyword. Sitting in the car-seat if very confining. Make sure the youngster has a chance to burn up some of that bubbling energy before you try to make them sit still. A few minutes spend running or jumping on the playground could use up some of that energy or consider playing a game of "hokey-pokey shaking" at the door so that "we can leave all our wiggles inside before heading for the car".

Bear in mind other physical needs. Share a drink of water, milk, or juice before leaving. Make a last minute potty stop before any outing. Avoid the threat of starvation bring along some small nutritious snacks like fruit leather, juice packets, or raisins to save the day.

The final letter of C-A-R is resistance. You want her/him to sit still and she/he is busy proving that you can't make her do it. Frankly you can't. Even if you do overpower the child and get them buckled into the seat, they will quickly learn to unbuckle themselves.

What you can control is your own behavior. Decide what you will do. Explain your decision to the child. For example, you have decided that if she fails to cooperate, you will read a book until she tells you that she is ready to get buckled in. Count on getting the opportunity to put this plan into action. The first time or two, the child needs to check it out and see if you really mean what you say.

When the child begins to struggle, you don't. Open your book and read. Say nothing. Even if this take 10 or 15 minutes, it beats listening to his/her howls during the entire trip. He will soon tell you he is ready to buckle up.

Fighting alone is boring and power struggles do not work with only one participant. In case it take him awhile to come to that conclusion, bring along a really good book. When the child says he/she is ready, help them buckle up, turn the key, and head for the road. Happy travels!

Dairy Princess Spotlights Sixth-Generation Farm

KINGSLY (Susquehanna Co.) — Susquehanna Dairy Princess Shana Mack spotlights Don-Mare farm owned and operated by Don and Mary Potts.

Don and Mary have four children, Dustin, Julie, Katie and Dru. The farm has been in the Potts family since 1842, a sixth generation farm.

Dell Baxter Potts and Joseph Potts first owned the farm. They passed it down to Arthur Potts who also sold maple syrup from the woods behind the barn. The farm at that time was called Maple Grove Farm. The farm was then passed down to Don's parents Delbert and Gladys who passed it down to Don and Mary in 1993.

The tie-stall barn is filled with 56 milking cows and approximately 50 calves and heifers, all registered Holsteins. Potts' own 257 acres and rent another 100 acres. Corn and mixed hay is grown on the farm. Don, Mary, Katie, Dru, and Delbert, all family members work on the farm. They also have four part-time employees, Jason Atkinson, Josh Lodge, Donny VanKuren and Leslie Hawley.

Mary lived on a farm in Springville when she was growing up. Mary has raised paint and quarter horses for the past fourteen years. She is a leader for the Sunny Mountain 4-H Club and has done a lot of work with handicapped children. Mary gave therapeutic riding lessons for several years.

The Potts farm is a Pennsylvania Century Farm. They have received No Till Farmer of the Year and Young Farmer of the Year awards.

The view across the road from the farm is Forest Lake. Like any family they enjoy playing in the lake. Therefore they try to have all the cows freshen before July or after August, this way they have a little extra time in the summer months to enjoy the lake.

The Potts' have put in a waste management system and concrete barnyard. They are very active with the Chesapeake Bay program. Living by a lake there are a lot of regulations to follow. It is only natural for the Potts' that they protect the environment so they have clean land, air and water to enjoy.

They often give tours of the farm to the people that live in the cottages at the lake, and to school kids and handicapped children's classes.

Build On Failure

LEESPORT (Berks Co.) — Help kids build on failure. Help them to rebuild their feelings by reminding them that there will always be another chance and that you will love them, no matter what.

If you tie a child's self esteem to their success, you are setting them up for unhappiness later in life. Having a loving, caring family is probably even more important for self-esteem than having a lifetime of successes.

1 teaspoon cinnamon
1 teaspoon cloves
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon nutmeg
1 teaspoon baking soda
4 cups flour

Boil raisins in 2 cups water for five minutes. Remove from heat. Add 1 cup cold water, shortening, sugar (which can be a mixture of brown and granulated), cinnamon, cloves, salt, nutmeg, and baking soda. Add about 4 cups flour or enough to make a thick batter. Bake in 325 degree oven for about one hour or until done.

ANSWER — Norma Breininger, New Tripoli, wanted a recipe for wet walnut syrup for sundaes. Thanks to Evelyn Benner, Mifflintown, for sending this recipe.

Walnut Syrup

Mix together:
1 cup light corn syrup
¼ cup water
⅛ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon maple flavoring
Add the following to syrup mixture:
1¼ cups walnuts

ANSWER — Here are two recipes to celebrate National Pork Month. Thanks to Vera Jane Newswanger, Morgantown, for sending both. The oven-barbecued is her husband's favorite.

Oven Barbecued Pork Chops

6-8 pork chops (¾-inch thick)
1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce
2 tablespoons vinegar
2 teaspoons brown sugar
½ teaspoon pepper
½ teaspoon chili powder
½ teaspoon paprika
¾ cup ketchup
⅓ cup hot water

Place chops in a heavy cast-iron skillet. Combine all remaining ingredients, and pour over chops. Bake, uncovered, at 375 degrees for one hour. 6-8 servings.

Pork Chops
With Scalloped Potatoes

3 tablespoons butter
3 tablespoons all-purpose flour
1½ teaspoons salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
1 can (14½-ounces chicken broth)
6 pork chops (3½-inches thick)
2 tablespoons cooking oil
Salt and pepper to taste
6 cups thinly sliced peeled potatoes
1 medium onion, sliced
Paprika to taste (optional)
Chopped fresh parsley, optional

In saucepan, melt butter, stir in flour, salt and pepper. Add chicken broth; cook and stir constantly until mixture boils. Cook one minute, remove from heat and set aside. In a skillet, brown pork chops in oil; season to taste with additional salt and pepper if desired. In a greased 13x9x2-inch baking dish, layer potatoes and onion. Pour broth mixture over the top. Place the pork chops on top. Cover and bake at 350 degrees for one hour; uncover, and bake 30 minutes longer or until potatoes are tender. If desired, sprinkle with paprika and parsley. Serves 6.

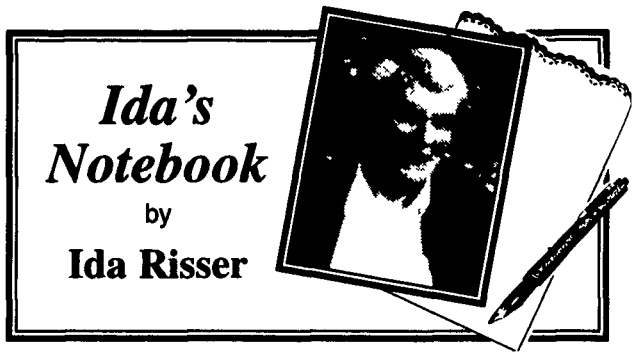
ANSWER — Thanks to Francis Homa, Alpha, N.J., for sending these recipes for Luci Essig. However, Luci wants trifle recipes, not truffles. However, these truffle recipes will be appreciated by many of our readers.

Rum Truffles

4½ ounces dark chocolate
Small knob butter
2 tablespoons rum
½ cup shredded coconut
3½ ounces cake crumbs
6 tablespoons confectioners' sugar
2 tablespoons unsweetened cocoa

Break chocolate into pieces and place in a bowl with the butter. Set the bowl over a pan of gently simmering water and stir until melted and combined. Remove from heat and beat in the rum. Stir in the shredded coconut, cake crumbs, and two-thirds of the confectioners' sugar. Beat until combined. Add a little rum if the mixture is stiff.

Roll the mixture into small balls and place on a sheet of baking parchment. Chill until firm. Sift the remaining confectioners' sugar into a larger plate. Stir the cocoa onto another plate. Roll half of the truffles in the confectioners' sugar until coated. Then roll the remaining truffles in the cocoa. Place the truffles in paper candy cases and chill in the refrigerator until ready to serve.



The other week my husband and I took a day away from home to see autumn foliage. There is a special mountain road in Snyder County that extends 15 miles straight across the ridge of the mountain. Usually we do not see any cars on this road, but this time we saw three cars plus lots of little birds and some chipmunks.

Later we drove to a special restaurant and had lunch. They served such a big meal that we brought some home for another time. On the way home I had to drive at a snail's pace as there was one-lane traffic for miles and miles on a busy highway. However, we will remember the beautiful maple and oak leaves for a long time.

Allen and his brother made a special machine to hull black walnuts. The other week our grandson helped to put several five gallon buckets of nuts through the huller. Even the neighbor brought some for us to hull. Now they are drying on special racks that my husband made.

Recently, we attended a meeting where pictures were shown of underwater activity. The divers swam with a lot of sharks and other smaller fish. Some gorgeous sunsets were also shown. It reminded me of the time that I went snorkeling in the Caribbean.

I took a big apple cake to be served after the program and only a small portion was eaten. So, I gave our son's family some of it as it takes too long for we two to finish it.

We have two small papaw trees that bloom with dark purple flowers. I thought that they had no fruit but my husband found one laying on the ground and surprised me with it. I do like the yellow edible fruit.

Chocolate Truffles

Coarsely grate 3-ounces chocolate
Melt with ¼ cup butter
Add the following:
2 tablespoons cream

7 tablespoons sifted confectioners' sugar
2 tablespoons grated hazelnuts

Let mixture stand covered in a cool place 12-14 hours. Make individual balls by rolling a small teaspoonful of the mixture in the palm of your hand. The friction and warmth will cause the chocolate to melt slightly, so the final coating will adhere. Roll balls in cinnamon-flavored cocoa or chocolate pastilles or shots. The covering will adhere to the mixture very satisfactorilyy. Keep refrigerated but remove two hours before serving for best flavor.

ANSWER — Normajean Weightman, La Plata, Md., gets together for afternoon teas with friends. She requested some really good recipes for scones to put a smile on her friends' faces and hear them say, "This is an excellent scone." Thanks to Sharon Garber, Elizabethtown, for sending her favorite recipes. More scone recipes from our readers will be printed on the "Home On The Range" page in the Nov. 8th issue. If you have a favorite scone recipe, send it now for inclusion.

Apricot-Pecan Scones

2 cups flour
¼ cup sugar
1 tablespoon baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt
⅓ cup cold butter
½ cup chopped dried apricots
½ cup chopped pecans
1 teaspoon grated orange peel
1 cup plus 2 tablespoons whipping cream, divided

In a large mixing bowl, combine dry ingredients. Cut in butter until mixture resembles fine crumbs. Add apricots, pecans, and orange peel. With a fork, rapidly stir in 1 cup whipping cream just until moistened. Turn onto a floured surface, knead 5-6 times. Divide in half; shape each into a ball. Flatten each ball into a six-inch circle. Cut each circle into eight wedges. Place one-inch apart on an ungreased baking sheet. Brush with remaining whipped cream. Bake at 375 degrees for 13-15 minutes until a toothpick inserted in middle comes out clean. Serve with Devonshire Cream and jam. Yields: 16 scones.

Devonshire Cream

1 tablespoon confectioners' sugar
½ teaspoon vanilla

In a small mixing bowl, beat cream cheese, confectioners' sugar, and vanilla until fluffy. Gradually beat in enough cream to achieve a spreading consistency. Cover and chill for at least two hours. Yield: 1 cup.

Day On A Dairy Farm Attracts More Than 700 People

Tours were given to the visitors of the dairy facility by the county dairy royalty. People were told how milk gets from the farm to their dinner table and about cows, heifers and calves and what they eat at these different ages. After the tours the tour guides told their group about the 3-A-Day program. 3-A-Day is the new dairy slogan that reminds everyone to have at least 3 servings of dairy a day, milk, cheese or yogurt.

A petting zoo was available for the children and adults. Horse and tractor drawn hayrides took place and were very popular. Another big successs was the kiddy tractor pull for children. About 100 children ages 4 through 11 peddled the kiddy tractor pull event provided by Doug Puzo. A newborn baby calf and other small animals were on hand for a petting zoo.

Have A Dairy-Good Day

KINGSLEY (Susquehanna Co.) — Susquehanna County Dairy Ambassador Amanda Miner reflects on the past year. She writes, "For starters, spring was a washout without a doubt. The poor farmers who got their corn in got flooded out with rain nearly every other day. Then came summer, or should I say 'the lack there of.' Hay season for most, including my family was a 'bust.'

"The best thing summer brought me was the dairy shows and fairs, which my family and I got to participate in. My brother had a particularly good year with his calves and heifers winning many junior champion and reserve junior champion awards.

"Although I can't say I did as well, I held my own and had a good time. I got to spend quality time with my family and friends and when you have that, who needs anything else?

"Now we're moving into the autumn and winter months and as the seasons change so do our eating habits. We go from the typical hurried up dinner of hamburgers and hot dogs to the healthier dishes and meals that follow through autumn and winter.

Pumpkin Roundup Showcases Originality

MONTROSE (Susquehanna Co.) — The 4-H Pumpkin Roundup was recently conducted in conjunction with Day on A Dairy Farm at Evergreen Lane Farm in Montrose.

Julie Delanoy won a grand champion for the best pumpkin pair. Tiffany Testa won a grand champion for her painted pumpkin that featured a spooky haunted house. Tiffany also won a grand for her carved pumpkin and a reserve champion for her pumpkin muffin recipe. Elaine Mackey received a reserve grand champion for her Frankenstein painted pumpkin.

MICHELLE KUNJAPPU
Special Sections

MANHEIM (Lancaster Co.) — It is rewarding when hard work and effort is applauded, and a recent banquet provided the opportunity for many Lancaster County 4-H'ers and their leaders to be honored for their time and participation in the organization.

The annual 4-H Recognition Night, a banquet conducted at Ruhl's United Methodist Church, drew more than 200 people.

Talent selections included performances by Christine Keefer, Lindsey Bensing, Katrina Smith, Colton King, Erin Bensing, and Lena Ferguson. Each were winners in the junior and senior divisions of the talent show conducted at the 4-H Fair.

In addition to talent selections, several awards were given. Suzanne Schmalhofer, Penn State extension office manager, received the Friend of 4-H award for her willing service to the organization, according to 4-H coordinator Katina Showman.

Sara Beckary, part of the Puppies with a Purpose 4-H Club, won the Best Friend Award. Each year one member of the club is selected for their dedication to the Seeing Eye Program.

The Ephrata Cocalico Community Club was recognized with the 4-H Club Spirit Award. To receive the award ($100 to the club's treasury), the clubs are asked to describe how they displayed 4-H spirit through their head, hearts, hands, and health.

In addition, State 4-H Achievement Days Winners included Erin Bensing, first place, textile science individual; Luke Hershey, first place, photography; and Jared and James Snyder, first place team, advanced orienteering. James Snyder was also named first place individual in orienteering.

Luke Hershey was given the 4-H Superior Achievement Award presented by Kerry Boyd. Hershey, 18, is the son of Les and Lois Hershey, Kirkwood, and a senior at Lancaster Mennonite High School. This year marked Hershey's 10th year of 4-H involvement. He has been a member of numerous clubs, covering the gamut from dairy beef, beef, sheep, and swine to sewing, cross stitching, and basket weaving. He has also served in several leadership offices in the clubs, including working as a teen leader.

"In 4-H I acquired life skills that I needed to become a well-rounded and responsible citizen," said Hershey.

Learning woodworking, for example, allowed him to make a feed trough for his animals. Besides educating him on how to raise animals, it "taught me the art of keeping good records," he said, in addition to schooling him in money management.

In his essay "What 4-H Means to Me," Hershey wrote that there were two foundational aspects that he learned in 4-H that helped to change his life: leadership and responsibility.

"4-H opened a way for me to try new things and pursue varied interests," said Hershey. He also credits 4-H for helping him learn people skills and parliamentary procedure.

The organization "helps create responsible leaders who will be productive citizens the rest of their lives," said Hershey.

Through 4-H Hershey has also attended state and national leadership conferences and events.

Other awards included this year's honor roll winners. In the junior category winners were Shelly Fairchild, Luke Hershey, and Kelly King. Mackenzie Crump, Hillary Grube, and Brent Talbot won in the senior category winners. These winners will get their name on a plaque at the Farm and Home Center, a $50 savings bond, a certificate, and comments the judges wrote about their application.

Each year 4-H members have the opportunity to earn scholarships through 4-H. The $1,000 scholarship will be released after the winners have completed his or her first semester and has enrolled for the second semester at a higher learning institution. This year's winners are Sarah Graybill and Lori Hess.

Additionally teen and adult leaders were recognized for their work in 4-H. Reid Fellenbaum, Boots and Saddles 4-H club, and Pygmy Goat Pride 4-H club, was given the Club President Award. Amber Bensing, Conestoga Valley community club, was given the 4-H Club Secretary Award. Kelsey Lenox, Boots and Saddles 4-H Club, was given the 4-H Club Treasurer Award. Mackenzie Crump, Rough Riders 4-H Horse Club, was given the 4-H Club Social Chair Award.

Adult leaders who have served one, five, 10, 15, and 30 years were also recognized. Serving for 15 years were Eugene Bollinger, Nancy Frey, Brenda Hershey, and Marion Miller.

Stella Hess has worked as a leader for 30 years. She considers her efforts her students "rewarding" and noted that "I'm now teaching their (Hess' former students) children."

Also to honor leaders, two new awards were given during the evening as part of 4-H's new Salute To Excellence award program. The first Volunteer of the Year Award went to Rob Sherick, Manheim, who recruited 32 leaders and 106 members to the Boots and Saddles Club.

Additionally, Connie Rutt, Quarryville, was recognized as the recipient of the first Lifetime Volunteer Award. Rutt has worked as a leader of a sewing club for 27 years, besides working with at-risk youth at the Lancaster County Youth Intervention Center, where Rutt helps with a 4-H nutrition education program. She has also spearheaded and developed, according to Showman, the 4-H international exchange program, which allows 4-Hers the opportunity to travel to Poland and host Polish students.

The 4-H Club Quiz Bowl — the second year for the event — will again take place during the 4-H Fair, she said. There is a traveling trophy for the 2-4 club members who win the quiz bowl, which includes questions of general knowledge.

As part of 4-H's new Salute To Excellence award program, the first Volunteer of the Year Award went to Rob Sherick, Manheim. Also a recipient of a new award from the Salute To Excellence program, Connie Rutt, Quarryville, won the first Lifetime Volunteer Award.

Sarah Graybill, left, and Lori Hess won this year's 4-H scholarships. The $1,000 scholarships will be awarded after they have completed one semester at an institution of higher learning and are enrolled for the next semester.

Stella Hess has worked as a leader for 30 years. She considers her efforts for her students "rewarding" and noted that she is now teaching children of her former students.

The program is also offering 4-H items such as a t-shirt, fleece blanket, and jacket. Orders for the items are due to the extension office by November 10.

Another opportunity, said Showman, is the upcoming North East States 4-H Leaders Forum, which Pennsylvania will be hosting in 2004. "If you have ever thought about going to one of these things, next year is the time," said Showman.

An open house for 4-H will be conducted January 28. The event offers the community an opportunity to visit with club members and leaders who will be available the booths that represent each club. A video at the event will feature information available for adults who are interested in becoming a volunteer leader.

During the evening members of the 4-H program development board were introduced. Formerly the 4-H Leader's Advisory Council and the 4-H Dévelopment Fund Board, the two committees, comprised of 4-H leaders, parents, and local business leaders, were combined in January to form the program develoment board. The board, along with Lori Little, 4-H animal science agent, planned the recognition banquet. Anyone interested in serving on the board can call Showman at (717) 394-6851.

Antiques Center

Former Chicken Coop, Factory Transformed Into Antique Center

Take the Shrewsbury Antique Center. It boasts 10,000 square feet filled with quality antiques. It's difficult to fathom that the building started out as a chicken coop in the early 1900s and was later converted into a sewing factory before being transformed into a quality antiques shop.

Nancy Hildebrand is one of the 54 dealers with individual booths in the building. She said, "I like this shop for the variety and high quality. The owner doesn't allow any reproductions or crafts. Everything must be older than 1965. We have a quick turnover of merchandise here, but not in dealers."

Through many years of selling and buying, Hildebrand as garnered a few tips for marketing, which she is willing to share.

"Many dealers crowd shelves and tabletops so full with items that customers don't notice unique cupboards and tables," she said. "If you want to sell furniture, you shouldn't cover it with other items."

A few well-chosen items placed on furniture will capture a customer's eye and bring attention to the item it sets upon.

Hildebrand has an early 1900s jelly cupboard where she displays a few items such as a slaw board, a wooden bowl, a yelloware teapot, and a brown tobacco bowl.

"I could fill these shelves with a lot more stuff that I have, but then people wouldn't notice the cupboard itself," Hildebrand said.

Other booths such as one by Margaret Carroll are filled with Victorian furnishings. A pair of Regency-era pole fire screens with intricate built-up crewel embroidery are especially eye catching and unique. The screens are for sale at $3,500.

"I buy what I like," she said of displaying items from several different eras. Her large collection of vintage tablecloths, aprons, and dresser scarfs are displayed in an oak wall cupboard believed to be built between 1900 and 1910.

"Baby boomers remember growing up with items from the 1940s-1950s, and that is what they want," Hildebrand said of the reason for the interest in retro items of plastic, chrome, shiny leather, and aluminum pieces. A whole section of the center is reserved for retro items.

David Keller said that when he purchased the property about 15 years ago, the building was already used as an antiques shop. Before Keller took over ownership of the center, antiques and collectibles were crowded hodgepodge into the building.

Today's customers prefer orderly arrangements with items that complement each other and prices and information about the items well marked.

"I like the variety that different vendors bring," Keller said. "It works better than having only one dealer displaying items. This way we have items from many different eras."

Keller has expanded the original building. In one end of the building, an old country store is set up. Huge wooden display cabinets, scales, and other items reminscent of the era are for sale.

"I try to incorporate older styles into the building project," Keller said. For example, he found iron handrailing in a demolished building at Baltimore Inner Harbor that he used. He also used old barn siding on some of the walls.

Displays should be sparse when trying to sell shelves, cupboards, and tables, according to Nancy Hildebrand. Otherwise, customers notice the items on the shelves and not the item itself.

Dave Keller owns Shrewsbury Antique Center, which has more than 10,000 square feet and 54 dealers. He did much of the work in transforming the building. He incorporated old barn siding and iron handrailing into the remodeled building.

THE ANTIQUE DETECTIVE

Anne Gilbert

Affordable Old Chinese Paintings Still Around

Surprisingly one of the most affordable art categories is Chinese paintings from the 18th and 19th centuries. Even in antique shops, prices can range from a few hundred dollars to under $3,000. They have never lost their appeal to American collectors since they were first introduced to our shores by China traders in the early 18th century.

The subjects were as varied as the materials used.

By the late 19th and early 20th centuries, as more Americans traveled to China, they brought back what they thought were old paintings. Especially popular were the ancestral portraits. Lesser known these days, but showing up at auctions more often, were the so-called "rice paper" paintings. Throughout the last part of the 19th century, they were exported in huge quantities and sold in America.

In the 1950s brushwork paintings, old and new, as well as copies, were fashionable decorator items. One of the most common subjects were the black and white horses, copied from early art.

Another form of art combined calligraphy with small paintings to tell a story. It is still popular with interior designers. There are also pages taken from calligraphy books and framed. Other examples are strictly religious and combined dieties with Chinese calligraphy.

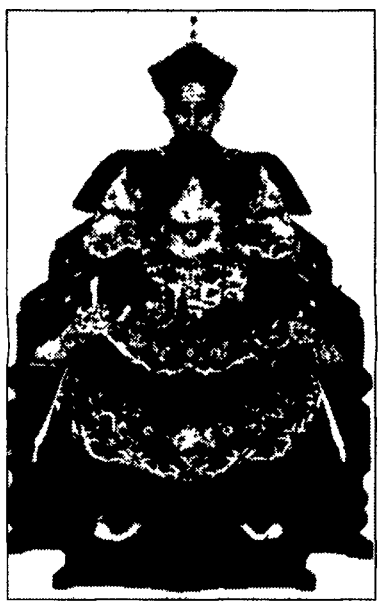
During the Boxer Rebellion (1900), when homes were looted, these religious books, (Siutras) were brought back to America by servicemen. Elaborate examples with gold ink illustrations of dieties can sell for thousands of dollars.

CLUES: Paintings from the early Chinese dynasties are in museums and private collections. However, there are still plenty of ancestor portraits still around. These were often done by commercial artists, using photos of the deceased, in the late 19th and early 20th centuries. Before photography, the artist keep a supply of facial features on hand.

The client would work out a composite and the artist would dress the "ancestor" in a Mandarin costume. However, as they became popular in America, artists created their own versions for export. Prints also flood the market, with details accented with hand painting. The largest can sell for $3,000 or more in a gallery. They weren't signed.

"Rice paper" paintings were originally made into albums, with four or more paintings on a page. The albums were in different sizes; 7x5-inch to 8x12-inches."

They used watercolors and gouache on pitch paper made from the papyrus plant. Since it was quite fragile, examples may not be in good condition. However, the paintings have retained their vibrant colors. The earlies examples depicted members of the Imperial Court, using much gold, silver and pearl dust in their costumes.



Ancestor portrait of the six Prince Yi (1816-1861) c.1905 is on a hanging scroll with ink and color on silk. Photo credit: Sackler Gallery, purchased by Smithsonian Collections Acquisitions Programs and by a partial Pritzlaff gift.

By the late 19th century subjects included festivals, landscapes, birds, animals and flowers. The albums were painted in a series and often named. A complete album can sell at auction for $600 or more. Originally they sold for a few dollars to tourists.

Rice paper paintings aren't signed. However, some have the shop labels or signatures of well-known Chinese painters. They were, afterall, studio productions with several artists working each painting. The album covers themselves were works of art, covered in brocade. Gold pheasants, flowers and fruit were depicted. The pictures were often framed in colored ribbons. Other times the pictures were sold separately.

Generally they were done on paper or brocade. At auction they can sell for as little as $200. Things to consider are age, condition and subject appeal. Are the paintings really prints? Are they painted on quality paper or textiles?

Cookin' Up The Past

A most charming and unforgettable old stove-related column written by columnist Jack Mabley (titled Nowadays Clashes With Her Old Ways) which ran in the Chicago Tribune on September 8, 1980, tells about Mary Walley and her old wood-burning stove that Mabley wrote saying "An Environmental officer knocked on the door of Mary Walley's Park Ridge, IL home and told Mrs. Walley it was OK for her to burn wood and paper in her wood stove, but she had to stop burning other materials, which created an odor and a health hazard. Mrs. Walley (who was 83 at the time) said she would continue to burn whatever she pleases in her beloved stove.

"All day, anything I don't like — wrappers, junk mail — I put in the stove," she said. In the morning I light a match to it. It burns so dry that when I throw potato or banana peels in it, there's nothing left.

I've been doing it here for 58 years and all of a sudden this bird comes over and says I'm causing a health problem and an odor. I've used this stove before these officials were born, and I'm going to keep using it."

Mrs. Walley has loved wood stoves all her life. When she and her late husband and two children moved to Park Ridge, they found a house with a chimney in the kitchen. So they bought a wood and coal-burning kitchen stove. Mrs. Walley said her earliest recollection from childhood was the comfort and pleasure derived from the warmth of the black wood-burning stove in her mother's kitchen.

"While the dinner was cooking on the top," she said, "the meat roasting or the bread baking in the oven, the water for the dishes was heating in the reservoir, and the tea kettle was humming away.

"On blistering hot days its warmth dried the humidity in the air and made life more comfortable. Returning from school on bitter cold days, we hung up our clothes, took off our shoes and boots, and gathered around the stove with the oven door open. The family cat made herself comfortable behind the stove among our boots, shoes, and socks that were drying.

"In 58 years," Mrs. Walley said, "this stove has consumed tons of refuse, and saved me miles of steps to the garbage cans in the alley. The ashes have served as fertilizer in the garden. Shall I now, after all these years, be denied the use of this stove because someone does not enjoy the smoke from its chimney?"

Park Ridge has not been too sticky about it, and I think Mrs. Walley will continue to enjoy her stove , if she doesn't thrown any old tires in it," said Mabley.

To receive the entire article, send an addressed,stamped envelope marked "Old Stove" to Anita Gold, P.O. Box 597401, Chicago, IL 60659.

NE Pest Management Center Receives $4.3 Million Funding

GENEVA, N.Y. — The USDA has awarded $4.3 million to the Northeastern Integrated Pest Management Center (NE IPMC), a regional organization that promotes practical pest management solutions for urban and rural settings throughout the Northeast.

Using a network of people, print, and electronic resources, the Center supports the development and adoption of integrated pest management (IPM), a science-based approach that fosters economic benefits while protecting the environment and human health.

"The Northeast presents diverse challenges when it comes to pest management," explains James VanKirk, the Cornell University senior extension associate responsible for the organization's daily operations.

VanKirk co-directs the Center with John Ayers, a plant pathology professor at Penn State University, and is assisted by information specialist Liz Thomas and writer Liz Myers, both at Cornell.

"The region has a strong agricultural base and is also highly populated. We're looking for ways to minimize risks associated with pest management in rural and urban areas while producing healthy plants and food and optimizing farm profitability," said VanKirk.

The award covers the next four years of Center operations and represents a 44 percent annual increase over previous support. This increased support will enable the NE IPMC to create several new competitive funding programs that actively support projects addressing regional IPM priorities.

"The new funding allows us to build on our past successes and strengthens our ability to identify the real-world needs of growers and communities," explains VanKirk. "Once we've pinpointed the most pressing IPM needs, the Center and its many partner institutions can respond by supporting research and providing reliable, accessible information to address those concerns."

NE IPMC is one of four regional IPM centers nationwide and covers the New England states, Delaware, Maryland, New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, West Virginia, and the District of Columbia. Established in 2000 as the Northeastern Pest Management Center, the organization is funded through the USDA's Cooperative State Research, Education and Extension Service and is jointly administered by Penn State and Cornell University.

The Center continues regional efforts that began in 1996, when state IPM leaders in the Northeast strengthened their commitment to collaborative efforts for IPM research and education.

Callisto Herbicide Named 2003 Product Of The Year

GREENSBORO, N.C. — Callisto™, Syngenta's newest post-emergent broadleaf herbicide for corn, has been named Product of the Year by Agri Marketing, the trade magazine of the agribusiness industry.

The Product of the Year Award program was created by the magazine in 1997 to recognize one agricultural product each year for outstanding marketing and impact in the marketplace.

"We look for ag products or services that are generating excitement today and will undoubtedly stand the test of time to be long recognized as major contributors to the ag industry," said Bill Schuermann, senior vice president, publisher and editorial director with Agri Marketing magazine.

The annual award is one of the most prestigious in the ag industry, generating best-in-class competitive entries ranging from biotechnology to farm equipment. An independent panel of judges spanning a variety of ag disciplines evaluates entries based on product benefits, sales and marketing goals, competitive pressures, and the integrated sales and marketing approach used. Winning results and top contenders will be profiled in the October 2003 issue of Agri Marketing magazine.

Callisto was registered in the United States as a reduced-risk product in June 2001. It quickly became the leading post emergent broadleaf herbicide in corn, used on more than 10 million acres of corn since product introduction.

Pennsylvania Ag Secretary Unveils Dairy Plan

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Pennsylvania Agriculture Secretary Dennis Wolff this week unveiled Pennsylvania's Dairy Action Plan in an effort to assist the state's dairy industry.

"The dairy industry is a driving force in Pennsylvania's economy, representing nearly 40 percent of the Commonwealth's agricultural industry and generating $1.7 billion in economic activity," Wolff said. "This segment of agriculture is a major determinant of the vitality of many of Pennsylvania's rural communities. We have created the Dairy Action Plan to provide the necessary leadership to help ensure that Pennsylvania dairy farms are profitable and competitive."

Wolff, a Columbia County dairy farmer, created the task force in July 2003 to make sure the PDA focused on listening to Pennsylvania's dairy leadership.

Wolff added that the dairy leadership's review and guidance is critical to the success of the Dairy Action Plan.

The Dairy Action Plan, which was approved unanimously by the nearly 40 members of the Dairy Task Force in attendance, will be comprised of several components, including:

• Dairy Task Force. Already in place, the Dairy Task Force will advise Wolff on dairy issues and assist with the development and implementation of the Dairy Action Plan and the Pennsylvania Center for Dairy Excellence.

• Pennsylvania Center for Dairy Excellence. Located at PDA, the center will be administered by an executive director. The mission of the center will be to coordinate existing dairy services to better meet the needs of the dairy industry and to supplement services being offered to the dairy industry. The center will use both internal and external resources and create teams to operate out of the regional offices to assist the center in its mission.

• Web-Based Resource Library. The library will be designed and maintained by PDA. The Website will contain information on hot topics, farms for sale or rent, programs for economic development assistance, sample business plans, marketing opportunities, risk management assistance, and other topics of interest to the dairy industry.

• On-Farm Coaching Program. PDA will develop a pilot program designed to assess the business practices of the farm and set goals for improving efficiency and profitability. Throughout the year, management issues such as genetic proficiency, milk quality, and production costs will be evaluated.

• Dairy Management Program. Part of the Center for Dairy Excellence, the program will utilize regional teams and an on-farm coaching program to help farmers become more profitable and competitive.

Wolff added that the Dairy Action Plan will depend on partnerships to sustain a strong knowledge base to aid the Center and help fulfill the plan's mission. This includes Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture partners in animal health and diagnostic services, market and economic development, food nutrition and safety, plant industry, and the State Conservation Commission.

Externally, entities such as the USDA, Pennsylvania Association of Township Supervisors, Dairy Stakeholders, Professional Dairy Managers, Dickinson Law School's Ag Law Center, Penn State Cooperative Extension, agriculture cooperatives, and farm organizations will represent an important part of the plan.

Hoch Elected Board Chairman Of John Cope's Food Products

RHEEMS (Lancaster Co.) — John Cope's Food Products, Inc., recently announced that Paul D. Hoch has been elected as chairman of the board of directors. Thomas L. Cope has retired as chairman, but will remain active as a director of the corporation and senior advisor.

Hoch, a resident of Carlisle, has been a member of the copo-ration's board of directors since January 2000. His extensive experience includes a thirty-four year career in business management, first with JC Penney, Inc., and later with Hershey Foods Corporation where he served for eighteen years as the general manager of Hershey's Chocolate World Visitor Center.

Under his leadership, Hoch turned Chocolate World into one of the largest corporate visitor centers in the country, attracting more than 2 million people each year. He initiated the Hershey Gift Catalog and built Hershey's wholesale gift-giving business. Hoch is also a former board member and board chairman of the Harrisburg Regional Chamber.

Thomas L. Cope stepped down as chairman on schedule with a succession plan established several years ago. Larry Jones will remain as the company's president and CEO.

"Tom Cope has made a trememdous contribution to this company over the span of his career as CEO and chairman," said Hoch. "I feel very positive about the company's future, and look forward to helping to strengthen the business and enhance the Cope family legacy."

Established in Lancaster County in 1900, John Cope's Food Products today is a privately held, multi-million dollar regional food company selling a wide variety of branded and private label frozen and dried vegetable products to supermarkets and foodservice customers from Vermont to Florida, and west to the Mississippi.

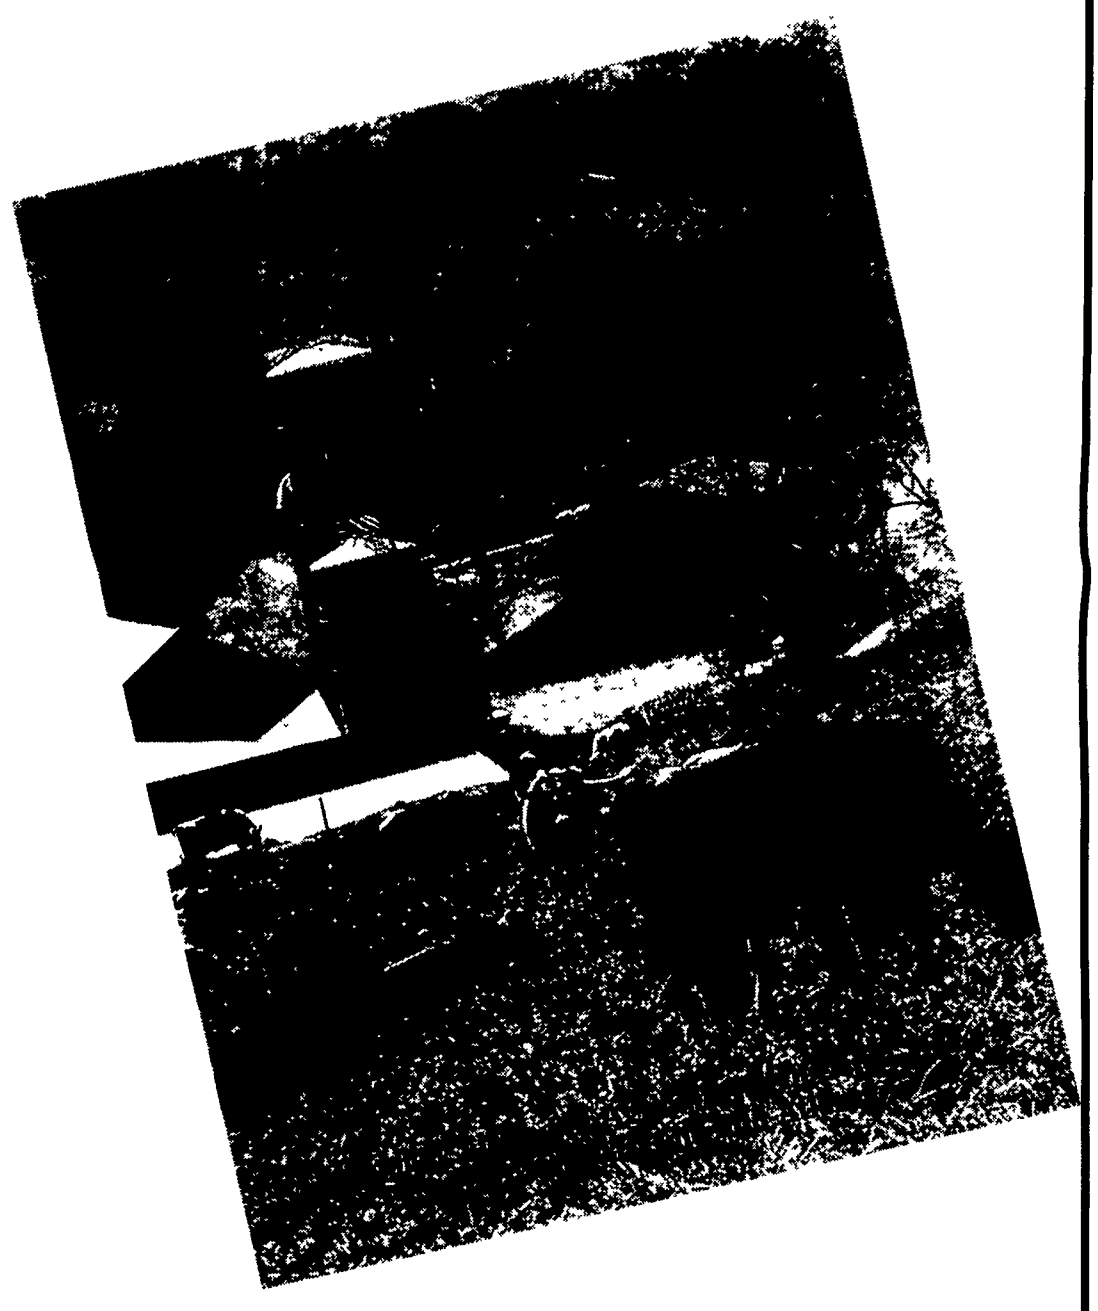
CALL ON THE EXPERTS WITH LANCASTER FARMING'S 2004 AG DIRECTORY: YOUR LINK TO AG INFORMATION IN THE NORTHEAST AND MID-ATLANTIC

The year 2004 marks the fourth annual Lancaster Farming Ag Directory. Looking for the experts in field and barnyard management? Looking for the leaders for crop and farm financial planning? Then you've come to the right place.

For 2004, Lancaster Farming plans a new portion of the book: "Call On The Experts" It's a component of our Ag Directory helpful for those seeking answers right at your fingertips.



In 2003, the Ag Directory totaled 152 pages and was jam-packed with contact names, numbers, addresses, and even Websites from agriculture in our eight-state region, including Pennsylvania and surrounding states. The "essential" reference book will include more names, addresses, phone numbers, and Web addresses than ever before.

Make the 2004 Lancaster Farming Agriculture Directory your source of expert information from the more than $50 billion regional ag industry.

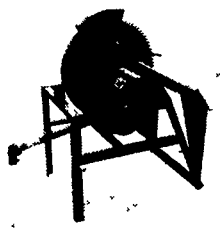
Portable Tractor Saw

Cut cordwood, pulpwood, firewood, ties or any other type of wood anywhere Hook it up to your 3 point hitch, attach the PTO and move the Woodsman Saw to any location As soon as you place a log on the sturdy 40" table, you'll get the feel of balanced-torque action A light hand pressure moves the log into the blade, release the pressure and the spring loaded table rocks back on dual roller bearings, ready for the next cut Built on a rugged steel frame, the Model 250 is engineered for years of heavy duty use



Model 250 Specifications

Saw blade	30" diameter
Table	40" x 10 1/2", mounted on dual roller bearings
Operating speed	1300 RPM
PTO speed	450 RPM
Depth of cut	12"
Drive	Matched V-belts
Shaft	Mounted on sealed, self-aligning ball bearings
Overall dimensions	38" x 44" x 44"

CLUTCHES/GEAR REDUCTION ASSEMBLIES

Our Specialty
We stock them, stock the parts, pinions, gears, bearings, seals & gaskets, splined out puts, shafts, housing adaptors/reducers, and pilot bearing holders. With little or no changes, these new clutch/gear reduction assemblies could fit your gas or diesel engine - 50-100hp Five different gear ratios. A valuable link between your engine and power take-off shaft equipment.

CLUTCH / 5.8:1 Planetary Gear Reduction Assemblies

For 8-30 HP Engines
Fits most — Honda, Robin, Kohler, Kawasaki, others (1-2 cyl.)

- Fits most standard crankshafts – 1", 1⅛", 1⅞16"
- Aluminum Castings/Housings
- Ball & roller bearings, hardened gears

Built for the long haul

Here's why:

- Corrosion-resistant steel sides
- Indestructible plastic floor boards (HDPE)
- 12-year guarantee for FREE floor and sides if they fail

Manage Your Moisture!

EXTRA 5% DISCOUNT FOR CASH OR INTEREST WAIVER UNTIL JULY 1, 2004 ON NEW DMI's NO FEES!

CASE IH DMI®

The Case-DMI Ecolo-Til 2500

- Breaks through the hardpan, unlike conventional tillage tools.
- Increases water absorption and air exchange for better nutrient flow up and down the soil profile and root system.
- Warms up the soil in the spring for earlier planting.
- Delivers more uniform crop germination.

Hoober Offers Case-DMI Ecolo-Til 2500 Units From 3 to 9 Shanks

Hoober also has 530 and 730 Case-DMI subsoilers in stock and ready for delivery.

Helping You Throug

- Service- Hoober has 9 service technicians between the McAlisterville and Intercourse locations that are factory trained to work on Axial-Flow combines. Repairs are made quickly and accurately.
- Parts – Transferred between our four locations everyday and we have daily pickups at the Philadelphia parts depot. We will do everything we can to get the parts you need – FAST!
- Inventory – Hoober has an excellent selection of locally traded pre-owned combines that are priced to give Mid-Atlantic farmers the best value for their dollar.
- Financing – 0% Financing Until Sept. 1, 2004 on all used combines and heads!
- Experience – Hoober brought Axial-flow combines to the east in 1977 and our employees have been working with Axial-flow technology ever since. We'll help you get the most from your machine.

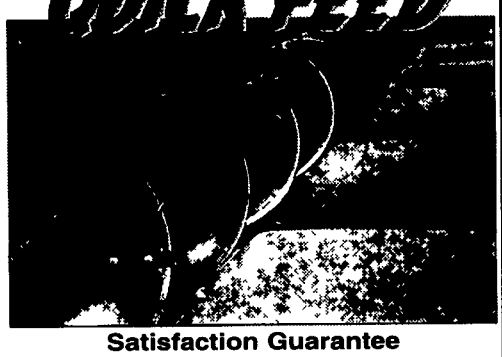
DOWN CORN?

QUICK FEED



"In the fall of 2000 we had about 2,000 acres of down corn. We were harvesting one particular field on a 45° angle across the rows at .5 to 7 mph and making numerous stops to clean the corn head as it would not feed in. After installing the quick feed brackets we were able to go with the rows at 2.5 to 2.75 mph with no feeding problems. The results can truly be amazing!"

Satisfaction Guarantee

- Dramatically Increases Corn Head Efficiency
- Increases Cross Auger Efficiency
- Eliminate Dry Fluff Build Up
- Continuous Even Flow of Materials to Feederhouse
- Can Help to Increase Ground Speed Dramatically in Adverse Conditions Such as Down Corn
- Does Away with Any Need for Rubber Paddles on Cross Auger
- No Need for an Ear Saver Hood as Rubber Paddles are Eliminated and Ears are Not Thrown Out of Head

We are currently making quick feed brackets for J.D. and IH heads but they will work on any brand with minor alterations.

Cost: $10/row plus S&H

GEHL Manure Spreaders

GEHL. Scavenger® Spreader

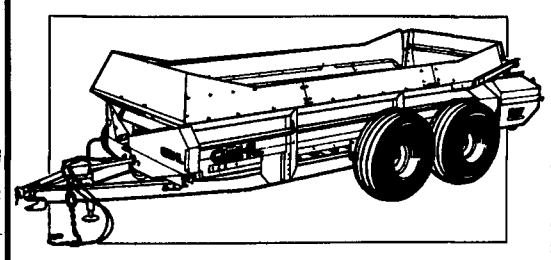
Models In Stock:

• 1312 • 1315 • 1322

Gehl's Scavenger® Spreader delivers the performance you need year after year, with increased durability and outstanding application control. All thanks to the following features

- Heavy-duty round core auger with segmented paddles to blend manure. Powered both up and down to ram through heavy loads and break up bridging.
- Adjustable auger and expeller speeds spread more types of manure.
- Variflow™ discharge featuring square-tooth expeller paddles for smooth, even spreading at the rate you choose.
- Improved drive system with heavier final drive chains and enhanced idler system.
- Powder Coat Paint

GEHL One Tough Box Spreader



Models In Stock:

• 1217 • 1287 • 1410

Gehl Box Spreaders deliver outstanding performance in a variety of materials. And they're built extra-strong for more years of dependable service. Available in four sizes, these units can be custom-equipped to match your operation.

Glu-Lam Post

...another quality product from Rigidply Rafters used in CONESTOGA Buildings.

- Stronger than solid 6x6 posts
- Straighter than solid 6x6 posts
- More uniform and Completely treated---
- .60 CCA throughout the #1 structural 2x6's that are embedded in the ground..
- #2 and better structural wood for construction above ground for pure appearance and greater overall strength.

CONVERT WASTED HEAT INTO FREE HOT WATER!

The Mueller Fre-Heater recovers wasted heat from your milk cooler's condensing unit and uses it to heat water you can use for feeding calves and cleaning. Adding a Fre-Heater to your milk cooling system will drastically reduce the cost of hot water in your operation, thereby lowering your cost of production and enhancing your profitability.

❖ BUSINESS NEWS ❖

Witmer Expands Product Offerings

SHIPPENSBURG (Cumberland Co.) — Witmer Implement Service, Inc. of Shippensburg is pleased to announce a recent addition to their line of quality agricultural products. Witmers is now a regional distributor of Farmer Ltd. Ventilation Systems, specializing in natural ventilation.

Since 1980, Farmer has been providing quality ventilation systems for all types of livestock production across North America.

Larry Frey has been given the responsibility at Witmers to grow and expand the Farmer product line. Frey has been employed at Witmers since June 1998 and has over 16½ years in agricultural related sales and service.

Witmer Implement Service, Inc. is committed and ready to meet the vital need of providing increased quality and profitability of dairy, swine, poultry, and equine production through proven ventilation systems..

Haney Receives Professional Certification

SHIPPENSBURG (Cumberland Co.) — Michelle L. Haney, an Agway Bagged Feeds equine feed specialist, has been approved as an associate member of the American Registry of Professional Animal Scientists (ARPAS).

As an equine feed specialist, Haney works with horse owners, breeders, and trainers in New Jersey to develop the best feeding program for their animals. She also works with Agway feed dealers on equine nutrition issues.

Haney is a graduate of Delaware Valley College in Doylestown, where she majored in Large Animal Science and minored in Pre-Veterinary Medicine. She's been riding horses since she was seven years old.

"We are proud to have equine feed specialists like Michelle who take the time to improve their skills and continue to learn," said Paul S. Mikosky, the Agway Bagged Feeds' manager of dealer relations and sales. "Michelle's recent certification as a member of the American Registry of Professional Animal Scientists is a testament to the dedication she has to keeping her clients updated and informed about issues related to animal agriculture."

Kuhn Knight Introduces Spreader

BRODHEAD, Wis. — Kuhn Knight, Inc. has introduced the new model 1159 box spreader.

It has a 590 heaped cubic foot capacity and features a hydraulic drive, dual apron with pintle chain, and two 20-inch diameter rooster-comb beaters with replaceable beater paddles.

The beater assembly can be easily removed when stockpiling manure. Six box spreader models are available from 320 to 700 heaped cubic foot capacities.

New Titan Model Offered For Planters

COLCHESTER, Ill. — The second model in the lineup of the all-new Titan Series mounts directly to the faceplate of the planter unit. The real benefits are faster soil warm up and elimination of row unit bounce for proper seed placement, which set the stage for better seed emergence. Quicker uniform emergence is what drives yield potential for a rapid return on investment.

For double duty operations the Titan provides ample space to mount a wide range of attachments directly to the face of the planter unit such as no-till coulters and fertilizer openers.

All Titan models are constructed of high yielding steel, the heavy duty 2.5-inch residue manager arms have field proven strength and durability to keep the 13-inch heat treated residue manager wheels running through the toughest and most severe residue conditions.

WARNING! DETERIORATING CONCRETE FROM CORN JUICE!

WARNING, ALL SILO OWNERS
Check your silo now for rotten staves. If you have been using your silo for 10 to 15 years for either corn silage or haylage, it is time to SHOTCRETE

RESURFACES INTERIORS:
- Coats the silo's interior
- Protects feed in storage
- Durable, tough, acid-resistant
- Increase useful life
- Economical

Before The silo's interior with plaster damage and stave exposed

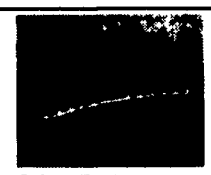
After The surface is reconditioned, and a new, thick, tough surface will protect stored feed

REPAIRS HOLES:
- Repairs even large holes
- Up to twice the strength of the original stave
- Rapid application
- Durable surface

Before A hole is worn completely through the silo wall

After...With the hole repaired by ShotCrete and a new surface applied, the silo is ready for years of use

EXTENDS USEFUL LIFE:
- Support for old foundations
- Special repairs can be made... quickly and economically
- Little or no forming needed
- Stronger than the original



Before The bottom part of the staves are completely worn away

S&S Silo Service Has More than 20 Years Experience Recoating Silos With ShotCrete.

Everlast II is better:
- it is galvanized heavier, like old times
- it is heat formed, less paint cracks
- is cut while hot, prevents early edge rust
- won't scratch as easy, paint is harder
- won't bend or buckle as easily, stronger design
- laps are tighter, and virtually invisible
- nails/screws seal better, ribs fit tighter to head
- zinc phosphate, not chromate under paint
- still priced about the same or less

In metal roofing and siding some manufacturers use soft pliable paint to prevent cracks. The disadvantage with softer paint is that it scratches so easy. Handling during erection, flying debris during storms, children playing against it, etc. can easily scratch softer paint. Scratches on softer paints tend to rust prematurely. Everlast heat forms to prevent this. Ask our competition if they heat form. It's important.

You Must Hear what Brad says:

Brad Turley with Simba his horse 7 8 Farms Killingworth CT

"I knew what I wanted and I found it! After extensive research I knew I needed a fabric structure from We Cover. The facts that made my decision were:

"The Engineering – when I saw their heavy built trusses and engineered drawings, I knew their building would hold up to the Atlantic Coastal winds and snow.

"The Lighting – I can ride my horse in the natural light with no shadows to spook my horse

"The Design – The Building has straight side walls giving me plenty of clearance for riding The fabric is in 12' panels and each panel is tightened by a ratchet system. Add to this the convenient overhang and a sensible ventilation system. These excellent features combined with the many options of this building package make it a real winner!

"My local building engineer is so impressed, he says he will never again recommend a traditional building for an indoor riding arena. "I recommend you call We Cover today!"

The strength, integrity, and appearance of a solid building along with the lighting and construction advantages of a fabric structure.

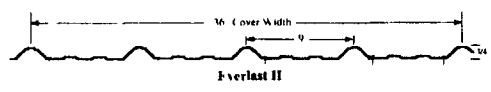
Metal Roofing & Siding

The Ultimate G-100 Process

"The Best"

1 Valspar 10S Finish Coat
2 Epoxy Primer
3 Zinc Phosphate Pretreatment
4 G-100 Zinc Coating
5 Full Hard Steel (80,000 min yield)
6 Heat formed less paint cracks



NOTE! It is more important what is under the paint than what you see on top!

1 One of the best paints, superior acid rain, cracking resistance and color retention
2 Primer coat promotes outstanding top coat adhesion
3 Zinc phosphate pretreatment This is a very important process - if your current supplier cannot supply you with this or does not know, you should reconsider
4 G-100 Galvanized Most metal roofing has approx 40% less galvanized under the paint G-100 is more galvanized than most unpainted panels
6 Heat formed Metal is painted before ribs are formed Most paint cracks at bends, heat forming greatly reduces cracks (check metal siding that is installed for 5-10 years)
7 Stronger design, superior strength, more metal per L F
8 Add Everything Together And Price Should Be $53 37 Per Square. $1 69 Per L F

OUR SPECIAL PRICE ONLY
$48.32 PER SQUARE
$1.53 PER LINEAL FT.

Having Problems Getting Milk Cold?

Consider a Mueller pre-cooler. It's an excellent way to lower the cost of cooling milk. It reduces milk temperature with water pumped straight out of your well. Mueller® precoolers are available in sizes to work with any system. If lower electric bills would make your life easier, call us and ask for more information on Mueller precoolers.

BEEF TIPS
The most outstanding and widely recognized maternal trait that has been passed on by European Simmentals is milking ability. An average, mature Simmental cow produces 16 to 24 pounds of milk per day as compared to 10-15 pounds from the average "Black Baldy" cow.

ALFALFA SEED

from the Dakota's Trask Family Seeds

Delivered to Farm • Priced Accordingly
$1.75/lb. Simeon's Store

Orders Booked Now Will Deliver by March 1

- Features grower-to-grower direct seed sales
- S D S U tested and researched
- Varieties S D Common Vernal and Rhyzoma
- Dakota alfalfas are dormancy rated at "2" and proven to excel in winter hardiness and production!
- Trask Seed is American grown and priced to reflect no corporate monopolies!

PA farmers have great hay crops with South Dakota alfalfa seed Paunterland Farms, Westfield, PA, John Paunter said "The Trask s seed grew extremely well. We recommend it to anyone. It is real leafy and yielded as well as any of the high priced name brand seeds. It cost 40% as much. We planted 294 acres We intend to plant more this spring. It was exceptionally winter hardy and resisted frost damage. We are very pleased."

E. Stoltzfus from Lancaster County has planted a more expensive name brand seed next to Trask Seed and sees no difference

SWEETCAKE 16NU

FEED SUPPLEMENT BLOCKS FOR THE LIVESTOCK INDUSTRY

• High Natural Protein • No Urea • Fat Enhanced
• Balanced Supplementation • Safe For All Livestock Classes

Sweetcake Advantages

- Aids in making the best use of your available forage
- Promotes a more even herd consumption, with 24-hour availability to all cattle
- Reduces labor to save you money and give you more time to make important management decisions
- Supplies much-needed vitamins and minerals that forage lacks to help your cattle perform to their genetic potential
- Supplies fat in most formulations to enhance energy intake

For Dairy

- Replacement heifers that grow out soundly and economically
- Body condition on dry cows so they can return to lactation, producing at the maximum potential
- Healthier herds, with essential trace minerals that help prevent metritis, retained placenta and other health problems
- Prompt re-breeding, thanks to essential nutrients

For Beef

- Stronger, healthier calves at birth
- Heavier Calves at weaning
- Cows that cycle better for improved conception rates
- Cows that milk better to raise a better calf

- AVAILABLE IN 200 LB. SIZE -
